Decision on Georgia's Governor Reversed

Assembly Can Pick Executive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the Georgia Legislature has the right to pick the state's next governor by choosing between Republican Howard H. Callaway and Democrat Lester G. Maddox.

"There is no provision of the United States Constitution or any of its amendments which either expressly or impliedly dictates the method a state may use to select its governor," Justice Hugo L. Black said in delivering the high court's 5-4 decision.

With the ruling the Supreme Court upheld the validity of a 142year-old section of the Georgia Constitution which provides that when no candidate for governor gets a majority of the popular vote in an election the state legislature is to choose between the two top vote-getters.

That section had been held unconstitutional Nov. 17 by a three-judge federal court in Atlanta.

Today's decision reverses the lower court.

Black said the Georgia House can now go ahead and pick between Callaway and Maddox.

When Georgians voted for governor Nov. 8 they gave Callaway a plurality but not a majority. The final unofficial count gave Callaway 451,032 votes,

Steele Driver Killed in Crash

John Henry Mooney, 39, of Steele lost his life Saturday at 7:30 a.m., three miles west of Holland when his car plunged off a highway and struck an embankment.

He came to a T intersection on a graval road, lost control of his 1957 Ford, went through it, struck an embankment on the opposite side and ran out into a field. Mooney's body was taken to the Germain Funeral Home in Steele.

A two-car collision Sunday at 5:55 p.m., resulted in injuries to six persons on highway 72, 12 miles east of Fredericktown.

A 1967 Chevrolet, driven by Frankie Eaton, 25, Elvins, came around a curve on the wrong side of the road and struck a 1956 Ford, driven by Charles Cook, 21, Farmington. Injured in the Cook car, were the driver, head and internal injuries; and two passengers, Ronald Anthony, 19, Farmington, cuts on the face, throat, and possible broken right leg; and Linda Dothin, 18, Farmington, minor cuts and bruises.

The injured were taken to the Madison County Memorial Hospital at Fredericktown.

Sunday at 7:25 p.m. on Highway M. two miles west of Scott City, a single car accident sent four persons to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau for treatment.

A 1962 Pontiac, driven by Larry Richmond, 23, Advance, ran off the road, struck a culvert, and hit two trees.

The driver received head injuries. Three passengers were injured. Malta Stepp Jr. 16, Advance, mouth cuts and possible internal injuries; Larry Ford, 26, Advance, cuts on face and head, and John Smeltkal, 22, Painton, cuts on face and forehead.

Sunday at 12:30 p.m. in Interstate 55, 10 miles north of Sikeston, a recapped mudgrip tire came loose, causing O.M. Springer Jr., 17, Portageville, to lose control of his car. The vehicle ran off the highway and struck an embankment.

Geary Wilson, 22, East Prairie, lost control of his speeding 1964 Ford, ran off the road and down an embankment. He was arrested on a charge of careless and imprudent driving while drinking. The mishap occurred at 2:15 a.m. Sunday on highway 60 four miles east of Wyatt.

On Saturday at 6:45 a.m. on highway 80 in East Prairie a 1965 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Paul Miller, 63, East Prairie, attempted a left turn, when a 1966 Chevrolet, driven by William Bryant, 54, East Prairie, attrmpted to pass.

In avoiding a collision the Miller truck went out of control and ran into the Smithson service station, causing an estimated $1,000 damage.

Operation On Ike Goes Well

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's condition was reported "good" and his recovery prospects "excellent" after surgeons removed his gall bladder today. Walter Reed Army Hospital said.

Surgeons who operated on the 76-year-old five - star general said his heart action was "normal" during the operation that lasted an hour and 45 minutes.

Eisenhower in the past 10 years had suffered two major heart attacks and the decision to remove his gall bladder with its "multiple" gall stones was in part aimed at avoiding any further strain on his heart.

The report on Eisenhower's condition came from the operating team in answer to written questions submitted by newsmen.

The surgical team, headed by Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, said there were gall stones in the gall bladder but "no stones" were found in the common bile duct, the major channel of bile from the liver and gall bladder to the intestines.

The presence of stones in the common bile duct would have been potentially a more serious situation than evidently was found in Eisenhower's case.

The surgeons said that the operation disclosed that Eisenhower had "previous trouble" with the gall bladder — apparently before the recent diagnosis that led to the surgery.

Mamie Eisenhower; son John, and Dr. Milton Eisenhower — the general's brother — were in the hospital ward and "they were kept informed periodically as to the progress of surgery," the surgeons reported.

"Gen. Heaton informed them of the general's condition when the surgery was over," they said.

The doctors said that for the present, no visitors except immediate members of the family would be permitted.

THE TEST: The two little boys were discussing ages. One asked the other if he were four or five. The second was not sure.

"Do you like girls?" asked the first.

"Naw!" the second retorted.

"Then you're four," said the first, " 'cause I'm five."

Hoffa Jury Rigging Conviction Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court upheld today the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, on jury tampering charges.

"The use of secret informers is not per se unconstitutional," Justice Potter Stewart said in delivering the court's divided decision.

In his appeal Hoffa claimed his rights were violated by use of a paid government informer to gather information against him.

Stewart swept aside this and other of the union leader's constitutional claims in affirming his conviction.

Chief Justice Earl Warren dissented. Justices Tom C. Clark and William O. Douglas filed a brief opinion saying they would have dismissed the appeal. Justices Byron R. White and Abe Fortas took no part in the case or in the decision.

There was no immediate comment from the Teamsters chief.

Hoffa was tried in federal court in Chattanooga, Tenn., and was sentenced to eight years in prison and fined $10,000.

Basketball Coach Predects Progress

M. P. McDaniel, high school basketball coach, spoke this morning to the Optimist Club at the Rustic Rock.

He said that his young team had an exceelent attitude and would develop as the season progresses. Prospects for next year are bright, he reported.

A musical group called the Prodigies composed of four teenagers, Chuck Leible, David McCann, Dan Corrigan and Steve Waters, made their second appearance before the club. All but McCann play the guitar. The fourth instrument is drums.

The club voted to meet on Christmas and New Years weeks on Tuesday at 7 a.m. following each holiday.

465 High School Jobs Provided

PORTAGEVILLE - Approval of a neighborhood youth corps project which will provide jobs for 465 high school students in the six-county area administered by the delta area office of economic opportunity was announced by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz in Washington.

The program is sponsored by the office at Portageville which has selected 195 students between 16 and 21 to participate in the in-school phase of the program.

This summer 270 young persons also will be employed by the project.

For the in-school phase, 32 high schools in the six county area are each entitled to employ no less than five and no more than nine students in the project.

Participating students earn $1.25 per hour. They are required to work a minimum of eight hours per week and can work no more than 12 hours per week during the school year.

Student tasks will include work as nutrion aides, secretarial aides, and maintenance aides.

Counsel will be provided at the participating schools and through the Portageville office.

All students in the program were selected on the basis of need. It is designed to prevent school dropouts.

Cost of the program is $269,000. The department of labor will provide $239,000 of the cost. The remaining $30,000 will be paid in kind by the sponsoring schools.

Counseling will be provided freely and is considered payment in kind.

The in-school phase is effective from Nov. 21, to May 21.

Area high school participating in the project are Sikeston, Benton, Oran and Illmo-Scott City in Scott county; East Prairie in Mississippi county; New Madrid, Lilbourn, Portageville, Howardville, Parma, Matthews, Morehouse and Risco in New Madrid county; Dexter, Bloomfield, Advance, Puxico, Bernie and Richland in Stoddard county. Six high schools in Pemiscot county and seven in Dunklin county also are included in the project.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps, a poverty war program administered by the department, is intended to make it possible for young people from low-income families to stay in school, return to school if they have left it, or receive work-training to fit them for jobs

Seven Injured

Seven accident victims were treated Saturday and Sunday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room:

Judge Fines Five Drivers

Five motorists were charged $17 each on charges of careless and imprudent driving in city court Friday:

Judge E.R. Schrader presided.

In other cases heard, James B. Ward, route four, was fined $7 on a charge of driving an automobile with an improper exhaust.

Rickie J. Baldwin, Benton, was fined $12 on a charge of violation of curfew.

Thomas M. Alford, Morehouse, was fined $7 for operating a vehicle with an improper exhaust system.

Girl Injured In Accident

Barbara Edwards was the only passenger in the car driven by her father Norvil Edwards when his car collided with a pickup truck driven by Linda J. Blumenberg, 18, of Anniston.

The Edwards child is reported in satisfactory condition today at the Missouri Delta Community hospital. She is being kept under observation.

Miss Blumenberg was summoned by police for running a red light.

In other police activity, Dickie J. Dirickson, route two, was charged Sunday with excessive speeding on North Main.

Sidney W. Hornback, Tamms, Ill, and Connie Sue Chism, 1015 Applegate, were arrested on Anderson Sunday and charged with curfew violation.

Ozlee Taylor, 200 Felker, was arrested on Felker and charged with assault and affray.

Family Saved In Fire

A mother of six children awakened in a smoke-filled room by the crackling noise of fire early today.

Mrs. Tommy Lane rushed the sleepy children out on the porch of the single story wood frame residence at 212 Luther. No one was injured.

Mrs. Lane then returned to the house to get a coat. The temperature was about freezing. The family took refuge from the cold in a neighbor's house.

The children range in age from 5 to 12 years. The oldest was staying with relatives.

All personal belonging except the night clothes the mother and children were wearing were lost. The inside of the house was gutted.

Lane was working at Hart's Bakery when the blaze occurred.

The fire was throught to have started in electrical wiring in the bathroom.

Firemen were called at 4:40 a.m. They fought the blaze until 7:10 a.m. today.

The house is owned by Bob Guthrie.

Author Views War First Hand

SAIGON, South Vietnam AP — Author John Steinbeck has come to wartorn Vietnam to "go up the rivers, into the mountains. To listen to it, to see it for myself."

The bearded 64-year-old Nobel Prize-winner said in an interview today he will learn to fire the M16 automatic rifle and the M79 grenade launcher.

"How can I write about these things if I don't know them?" he asked.

Steinbeck and his wife arrived Saturday for an "indefinite stay."

His reports will appear as a series of letters, he said, in Newsday, the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper.

Steinbeck's guide part of the time, will be his son John (Catbird) Steinbeck, 20, who has been in Vietnam since last June. He is an Army Specialist Fourth Class assigned to the armed forces radio and television network.

Steinbeck said he has been deeply concerned about the war for some time.

"I had to come and see it for myself," he said.

Asked about current talk of peace negotiations, Steinbeck said: "It smells like something is in the air.

"But I don't think this war will be settled with a peace treaty," he added. "It will more likely end with a prolonged truce in which the war just fades away."

The task of the allies is to "stay here and hold on," he continued. "It will take time, but if we stick it out I think we'll see some changes on the other side.

Release Set For Wounded Prisoners

MADRID (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman said Sunday night that the United States plans to send some sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners of war home.

Harriman indicated that the United States would like to have a prisoner exchange, but that the U.S. plan was not conditional on any reciprocal action from Hanoi.

He did not say when the repatriation would be done nor the number involved. The release, he said, would be undertaken through the International Red Cross and not by direct approach to North Vietnam.

Harriman, who arrived Sunday from Algeria, told newsmen of the plan in conversation during a reception at the U.S. Embassy. He is on a tour of various nations to explain the U.S. position on Vietnam and the decisions of the recent Manila conference.

The only North Vietnamese known to be held by the United States are 19 seamen pulled from the Gulf of Tonkin when their torpedo boats were sunk.

The Saigon government has custody of most North Vietnamese captured in fighting, including nearly 600 seized by U.S. units. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been said to be willing to "offer an uneven exchange" for U.S. airmen held in the north.

B52s Pull First Raid in 2 Months

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Striking at Communist forces believed readying another drive south, U.S. B52 Stratoforts bombed the Mu Gia Pass in North Vietnam today and the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam Sunday.

The giant eight-engine bombers, each carrying up to 27 tons of bombs, struck at a mile-long stretch of the mountain pass through which the North Vietnamese filter into Laos and down to South Vietnam.

The B52s attacked Communist concentrations Sunday in the demilitarized zone seven miles north of the U.S. Marine stronghold known as the Rockpile.

The attack on the Mu Gia Pass was the eighth B52 raid on North Vietnam and the first since Oct. 10. The B52s had not hit the demilitarized zone in almost two months, although other U.S. planes have pounded it repeatedly.

In other developments:

—Some 2,000 more American combat infantrymen arrived in Vietnam to bolster U. S. strength here to 365,700 men.

—Two warships of the Thai navy arrived in Saigon to add to Thailand's contribution to the allied side. Thailand previously sent two C123 transport planes.

—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge left by plane for the United States to spend the Christmas holidays with his family. Lodge has scoffed at speculation that he would not return.

—A U.S. Navy spokesman said some North Vietnamese MIG pilots duck across the border of Red China to escape pursuit by American jet fighters.

"Certainly I am positive that in some cases, when they decide to retreat, they go north," the spokesman said. He added, however, that he had no information that the North Vietnamese are using bases in China either to launch aerial missions or as a sanctuary.

In ground action, South Vietnamese infantrymen beat back three assaults today by an estimated Viet Cong battalion — about 500 men — in two and a half hours of fighting 44 miles southwest of Saigon. Vietnamese headquarters said the government forces took light casualties and killed 20 of the attackers.

A reinforced platoon of up to 50 men from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division suffered heavy casualties Sunday in a fierce fight with an enemy force of unknown size about 10 miles north of Tay Ninh City. A U.S. spokesman said 26 Communists were killed. The clash was in War Zone C about 40 miles northwest of Saigon, an area of heavy fighting in Operation Attleboro last month.

Ground fighting elsewhere was small and scattered, both the U.S. and Vietnamese military commands reported.

U.S. headquarters announced that 442 American planes and four helicopters have been lost over North Vietnam since the start of the air offensive in August 1964. Over South Vietnam, headquarters said, 141 U.S. planes have gone down in combat and more than 240 helicopters have been lost since January 1961.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. jet fighter - bombers flew through thunderstorms and low clouds Sunday on 85 bombing missions.

Pilots reported destroying or damaging seven bridges, 13 junks and barges, an antiaircraft gun site, 16 staging and storage areas, and two bridges northwest of Dong Hoi.

The B52 raid on the Mu Gia Pass was the third by the huge bombers on this key target. The Guam-based Stratoforts stuck the pass last April 12 — in the first B52 raid over North Vietnam — and again on April 27.

FIRE LEVELED the George Smith residence, one mile west of Salcedo, Saturday night. No one was home. The family was shopping. The Smiths have four children ranging i n age from three to 14. All personal belonging except the clothes they were wearing were destroyed.

Ruby's Cancer May Not Be Hopeless

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The physician in charge of Jack Ruby's treatment said today that Ruby's cancer is "not necessarily a hopeless case."

Dr. Jay Sanford, professor of internal medicine at Southwestern Medical School, said that medical investigation into the primary source of the malignant disease may take more than a week.

Ruby, 55, is the nonsmoking, nondrinking onetime Dallas night club operator who killed Lee Harvey Oswald, later identified by the Warren Commission as President John F. Kennedy's assassin.

The Dallas Times Herald quoted an unnamed "source close to the medical aspects of the case" that the tumor has spread into too many vital areas, has escaped detection too long, and that doctors fear Ruby is "beyond hope."

Sanford said he talked with Ruby this morning and quoted Ruby as saying "I'm feeling better this morning than I have in many months."

The doctor said Ruby may or may not be operated on for the cancer, depending on its source.

He added that if surgery is not used, chemical and radiological treatment might be employed.

Sanford said that physicians speculate that the primary source of the cancer is either in Ruby's gastrointestinal tract, a lung or pancreas.

Speaking at a news conference in Sheriff Bill Decker's office, Sanford said Ruby's general condition is reasonably good and that it was "impossible to predict" if Ruby's disease is a terminal case.

Sanford said Ruby seemed to accept the diagnosis and appeared to be "trying to maintain his composure."

Ruby was taken to Parkland Hospital Friday night after being treated for a week by the county health officer for a congested, tight-feeling chest. The hospital at first said it appeared to be pneumonia.

Basketball Coach Predicts Progress

M. P. McDaniel, high school basketball coach, spoke this morning to the Optimist Club at the Rustic Rock.

He said that his young team had an exceelent attitude and would develop as the season progresses. Prospects for next year are bright, he reported.

A musical group called the Prodigies composed of four teenagers, Chuck Leible, David McCann, Dan Corrigan and Steve Waters, made their second appearance before the club. All but McCann play the guitar. The fourth instrument is drums.

The club voted to meet on Christmas and New Years weeks on Tuesday at 7 a.m. following each holiday.

465 High School Jobs Provided

PORTAGEVILLE - Approval of a neighborhood youth corps project which will provide jobs for 465 high school students in the six-county area administered by the delta area office of economic opportunity was announced by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz in Washington.

The program is sponsored by the office at Portageville which has selected 195 students between 16 and 21 to participate in the in-school phase of the program.

This summer 270 young persons also will be employed by the project.

For the in-school phase, 32 high schools in the six county area are each entitled to employ no less than five and no more than nine students in the project.

Participating students earn $1.25 per hour. They are required to work a minimum of eight hours per week and can work no more than 12 hours per week during the school year.

Student tasks will include work as nutrion aides, secretarial aides, and maintenance aides.

Counsel will be provided at the participating schools and through the Portageville office.

All students in the program were selected on the basis of need. It is designed to prevent school dropouts.

Cost of the program is $269,000. The department of labor will provide $239,000 of the cost. The remaining $30,000 will be paid in kind by the sponsoring schools.

Counseling will be provided freely and is considered payment in kind.

The in-school phase is effective from Nov. 21, to May 21.

Area high school participating in the project are Sikeston, Benton, Oran and Illmo-Scott City in Scott county; East Prairie in Mississippi county; New Madrid, Lilbourn, Portageville, Howardville, Parma, Matthews, Morehouse and Risco in New Madrid county; Dexter, Bloomfield, Advance, Puxico, Bernie and Richland in Stoddard county. Six high schools in Pemiscot county and seven in Dunklin county also are included in the project.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps, a poverty war program administered by the department, is intended to make it possible for young people from low-income families to stay in school, return to school if they have left it, or receive work-training to fit them for jobs.

Seven Injured

Seven accident victims were treated Saturday and Sunday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room:

Judge Fines Five Drivers

John Penermon, 326 Dixie, Henry Holland, route two, Leo McCormick Sr., 421 Pam, Dwain E. Boley, Vanduser, and Robert M. Henderson, 403 Shady Lane. Judge E.R. Schrader presided.

In other cases heard, James B. Ward, route four, was fined $7 on a charge of driving an automobile with an improper exhaust.

Rickie J. Baldwin, Benton, was fined $12 on a charge of violation of curfew.

Thomas M. Alford, Morehouse, was fined $7 for operating a vehicle with an improper exhaust system.

Girl Injured In Accident

Barbara Edwards was the only passenger in the car driven by her father Norvil Edwards when his car collided with a pickup truck driven by Linda J. Blumenberg, 18, of Anniston.

The Edwards child is reported in satisfactory condition today at the Missouri Delta Community hospital. She is being kept under observation.

Miss Blumenberg was summoned by police for running a red light.

In other police activity, Dickie J. Dirickson, route two, was charged Sunday with excessive speeding on North Main.

Sidney W. Hornback, Tamms, Ill, and Connie Sue Chism, 1015 Applegate, were arrested on Anderson Sunday and charged with curfew violation.

Ozlee Taylor, 200 Felker, was arrested on Felker and charged with assault and affray.

Family Saved In Fire

A mother of six children awakened in a smoke-filled room by the crackling noise of fire early today.

Mrs. Tommy Lane rushed the sleepy children out on the porch of the single story wood frame residence at 212 Luther. No one was injured.

Mrs. Lane then returned to the house to get a coat. The temperature was about freezing. The family took refuge from the cold in a neighbor's house.

The children range in age from 5 to 12 years. The oldest was staying with relatives.

All personal belonging except the night clothes the mother and children were wearing were lost. The inside of the house was gutted.

Lane was working at Hart's Bakery when the blaze occurred.

The fire was throught to have started in electrical wiring in the bathroom.

Firemen were called at 4:40 a.m. They fought the blaze until 7:10 a.m. today.

The house is owned by Bob Guthrie.

Author Views War First Hand

SAIGON, South Vietnam AP — Author John Steinbeck has come to wartorn Vietnam to "go up the rivers, into the mountains. To listen to it, to see it for myself."

The bearded 64-year-old Nobel Prize-winner said in an interview today he will learn to fire the M16 automatic rifle and the M79 grenade launcher.

"How can I write about these things if I don't know them?" he asked.

Steinbeck and his wife arrived Saturday for an "indefinite stay."

His reports will appear as a series of letters, he said, in Newsday, the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper.

Steinbeck's guide part of the time, will be his son John (Catbird) Steinbeck, 20, who has been in Vietnam since last June. He is an Army Specialist Fourth Class assigned to the armed forces radio and television network.

Steinbeck said he has been deeply concerned about the war for some time.

"I had to come and see it for myself," he said.

Asked about current talk of peace negotiations, Steinbeck said: "It smells like something is in the air.

"But I don't think this war will be settled with a peace treaty," he added. "It will more likely end with a prolonged truce in which the war just fades away."

The task of the allies is to "stay here and hold on," he continued. "It will take time, but if we stick it out I think we'll see some changes on the other side.

Release Set For Wounded Prisoners

MADRID (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman said Sunday night that the United States plans to send some sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners of war home.

Harriman indicated that the United States would like to have a prisoner exchange, but that the U.S. plan was not conditional on any reciprocal action from Hanoi.

He did not say when the repatriation would be done nor the number involved. The release, he said, would be undertaken through the International Red Cross and not by direct approach to North Vietnam.

Harriman, who arrived Sunday from Algeria, told newsmen of the plan in conversation during a reception at the U.S. Embassy. He is on a tour of various nations to explain the U.S. position on Vietnam and the decisions of the recent Manila conference.

The only North Vietnamese known to be held by the United States are 19 seamen pulled from the Gulf of Tonkin when their torpedo boats were sunk.

The Saigon government has custody of most North Vietnamese captured in fighting, including nearly 600 seized by U.S. units. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been said to be willing to "offer an uneven exchange" for U.S. airmen held in the north.

B52s Pull First Raid in 2 Months

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Striking at Communist forces believed readying another drive south, U.S. B52 Stratoforts bombed the Mu Gia Pass in North Vietnam today and the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam Sunday.

The giant eight-engine bombers, each carrying up to 27 tons of bombs, struck at a mile-long stretch of the mountain pass through which the North Vietnamese filter into Laos and down to South Vietnam.

The B52s attacked Communist concentrations Sunday in the demilitarized zone seven miles north of the U.S. Marine stronghold known as the Rockpile.

The attack on the Mu Gia Pass was the eighth B52 raid on North Vietnam and the first since Oct. 10. The B52s had not hit the demilitarized zone in almost two months, although other U.S. planes have pounded it repeatedly.

In other developments:

—Some 2,000 more American combat infantrymen arrived in Vietnam to bolster U.S. strength here to 365,700 men.

—Two warships of the Thai navy arrived in Saigon to add to Thailand's contribution to the allied side. Thailand previously sent two C123 transport planes.

—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge left by plane for the United States to spend the Christmas holidays with his family. Lodge has scoffed at speculation that he would not return.

—A U.S. Navy spokesman said some North Vietnamese MIG pilots duck across the border of Red China to escape pursuit by American jet fighters.

"Certainly I am positive that in some cases, when they decide to retreat, they go north," the spokesman said. He added, however, that he had no information that the North Vietnamese are using bases in China either to launch aerial missions or as a sanctuary.

In ground action, South Vietnamese infantrymen beat back three assaults today by an estimated Viet Cong battalion — about 500 men — in two and a half hours of fighting 44 miles southwest of Saigon. Vietnamese headquarters said the government forces took light casualties and killed 20 of the attackers.

A reinforced platoon of up to 50 men from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division suffered heavy casualties Sunday in a fierce fight with an enemy force of unknown size about 10 miles north of Tay Ninh City. A U.S. spokesman said 26 Communists were killed. The clash was in War Zone C about 40 miles northwest of Saigon, an area of heavy fighting in Operation Attleboro last month.

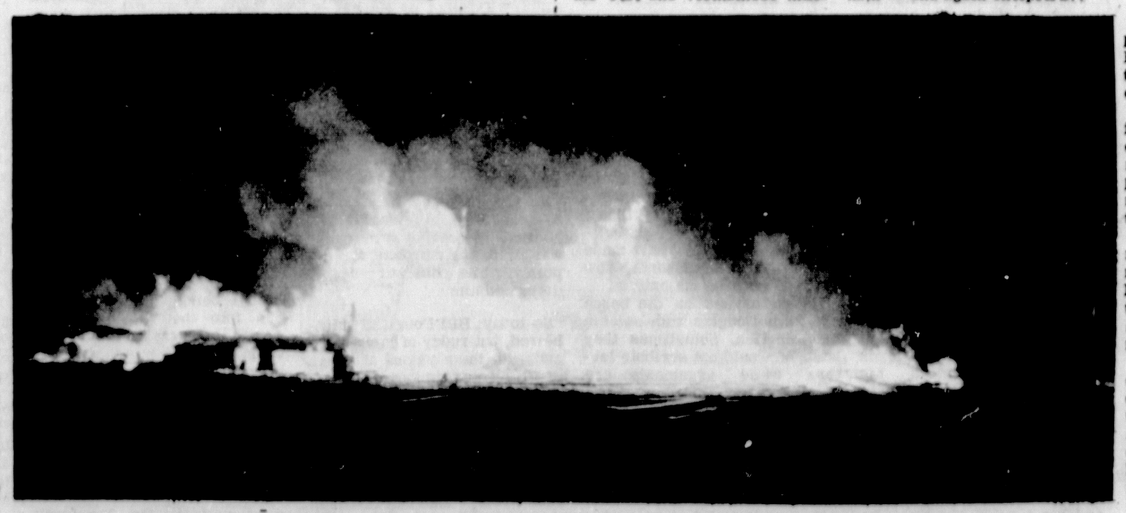
Ground fighting elsewhere was small and scattered, both the U.S. and Vietnamese military commands reported.

U.S. headquarters announced that 442 American planes and four helicopters have been lost over North Vietnam since the start of the air offensive in August 1964. Over South Vietnam, headquarters said, 141 U.S. planes have gone down in combat and more than 240 helicopters have been lost since January 1961.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. jet fighter - bombers flew through thunderstorms and low clouds Sunday on 85 bombing missions.

Pilots reported destroying or damaging seven bridges, 13 junks and barges, an antiaircraft gun site, 16 staging and storage areas, and two bridges northwest of Dong Hoi.

The B52 raid on the Mu Gia Pass was the third by the huge bombers on this key target. The Guam-based Stratoforts stuck the pass last April 12 — in the first B52 raid over North Vietnam — and again on April 27.



FIRE LEVELED the George Smith residence, one mile west of Salcedo, Saturday night. No one was home. The family was shopping. The Smiths have four children ranging i n age from three to 14. All personal belonging except the clothes they were wearing were destroyed.

Ruby's Cancer May Not Be Hopeless

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The physician in charge of Jack Ruby's treatment said today that Ruby's cancer is "not necessarily a hopeless case."

Dr. Jay Sanford, professor of internal medicine at Southwestern Medical School, said that medical investigation into the primary source of the malignant disease may take more than a week.

Ruby, 55, is the nonsmoking, nondrinking onetime Dallas night club operator who killed Lee Harvey Oswald, later identified by the Warren Commission as President John F. Kennedy's assassin.

The Dallas Times Herald quoted an unnamed "source close to the medical aspects of the case" that the tumor has spread into too many vital areas, has escaped detection too long, and that doctors fear Ruby is "beyond hope."

Sanford said he talked with Ruby this morning and quoted Ruby as saying "I'm feeling better this morning than I have in many months."

The doctor said Ruby may or may not be operated on for the cancer, depending on its source.

He added that if surgery is not used, chemical and radiological treatment might be employed.

Sanford said that physicians speculate that the primary source of the cancer is either in Ruby's gastrointestinal tract, a lung or pancreas.

Speaking at a news conference in Sheriff Bill Decker's office, Sanford said Ruby's general condition is reasonably good and that it was "impossible to predict" if Ruby's disease is a terminal case.

Sanford said Ruby seemed to accept the diagnosis and appeared to be "trying to maintain his composure."

Ruby was taken to Parkland Hospital Friday night after being treated for a week by the county health officer for a congested, tight-feeling chest. The hospital at first said it appeared to be pneumonia.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Christmas giving should be primarily to children and they may be neglected this year.

The United Fund has been prolonged. More than 75 per cent of the goal has been reached but the effort to obtain the balance extends into the Christmas season.

A campaign to raise building funds for the Missouri Delta Community hospital overlaps the United Fund campaign and has been underway throughout the year.

Sikeston residents have many places to put money. Churches and other organizations are waging their traditional campaigns to raise funds. All are worthy.

But Sikeston residents this year could easily overlook another charity - the Tree of Lights, sponsored by firemen.

Contributions, which light the evergreen tree in American Legion Park, are especially important because they stay at home and brighten Christmas for our neighbors' children.

The funds are used to purchase toys for needy children, who either will not be remembered at Christmas or who will get only meager gifts.

Sometimes new programs capture attention and attract a more receptive public.

There is much competition for the giver's dollar in this pre-Christmas season of tight money, high taxes and more than the usual number of fund raising campaigns.

These conditions do not detract from the worthiness of the firemen's project.

The first obligation of Sikeston people is to take care of their own. The Tree of Lights conforms to this philosophy and brings Christmas brightness to children of the community. Indifference will produce a dark, gloomy holiday for our children, who should be remembered. It will be symbolized by a dark tree in the park.

More than ninety-three per cent of your Christmas Seal dollar stays in Missouri to help fight TB and other respiratory diseases.

While his liberal philosophy never meshed with the conservative viewpoint, there is no doubt but that Senator Douglas served his constituents from the standpoint of a devoted love for people, a dedicated idealism and with a willingness to serve honestly and with unselfish use of his own talents.

He was in the Senate more than 18 years and as a former professor he contributed much to that body from his background as an economics professor.

Many others, who have served that long, have grown away from the people they served. Senator Douglas did grow old on the job but he never grew away from the people.

Others long in public service chose to stay in Washington in appointive jobs because of their growing isolation from the people back home who put them in office. This is often an injustice and unfair to the people, who have rejected their philosophy and chosen to limit their service by defeating them at the polls.

There are many of these lame duck officials in the Washington bureaucracy, unwanted by the people, who must continue to support them financially.

What the bureaucracy usually needs and doesn't get is an infusion of new life and ideas by practitioners close to the people and responsive to their will not the bumbling attempts of exhausted office holders determined to finish their days on the public payroll at any cost in the peculiar, detached political climate along the banks of the Potomac far from the folks back home.

Many vain men assume that once the people elect them to office they owe them a living the rest of their lives. That just isn't the case or at least it shouldn't be the case.

Douglas is not one of these.

He says that a defeated officeholder should not accept a political appointment.

He wants to go back to the life of a citizen rather than "hang around the fringes."

Douglas can make a greater contribution that way. The people - his friends and neighbors - can benefit from his counsel and he can contribute much to their understanding of the problems of government.

Douglas is a man who never lost the common touch after he went to Washington and has maintained a love for the people, who repeatedly elected him to the Senate. In defeat, he hasn't rejected them.

He can hold his head up when he packs his bag and leaves the capital.

A big man in the broadest meaning of the term will be returning home.

SAFETY COSTS LESS PER MILE

Don't get us wrong. We're all for road-salting when the wintry blizzards and sleet storms sweep down on us - as they presently will. And we hope our highway people use plenty of it - until science comes up with something better than sodium chloride or calcium chloride, which it hasn't yet.

But we are getting concerned about reports that these self-same salts in some localities eat through body panels and fenders in a single winter. After reading the National Safety Council reports that 175,000 school buses were in daily use carrying 12,500,000 of our children, we have a right to be uneasy about their safety. And there's grave concern over the cost to us as taxpayers- for state inspectors have been barring buses from the roads long before their time. Their inspections have shown rust not only penetrating the body panels but also gnawing almost through the main side ribs that hold up the roof.

Fortunately, however, there is a solution - discovered, tested and proved by a leading builder of school buses who anticipated this growing challenge as long ago as 1954. Through the use of zinc-dipped body sheets, says Chief Engineer Roy Hartman of Superior Coach Corporation, a 66-passenger bus selling for $6,000 to $8,500 (depending on extras) gives up to 50 percent longer life - for an added cost of less than $100!

As a result of this pioneering, major bus builders, including Bluebird, Carpenter Body Works, Divco-Wayne, Ward Body Works and Dodge Division of Chrysler, are now taking advantage of the protection of zinc. Three states - Texas, North Carolina and Florida - now specify mill galvanized steel sheet for the protection of their school children. And in Washington this December, the National Conference on School Transportation is considering revision of its "Minimum Standards for School Buses" to recommend national adoption of zinc-coated steel for all school bus bodies.

It seems obvious that if zinc-coating pays off in safety and in miles-per-dollar for school buses, the manufacturers of trucks will discover its advantages, and the day may come when we will greet the lovely falling snow once more with all the enthusiasm of our childhood.

And we can hope, too, that Santa's sleigh will be galvanized this year!

Our sympathy is extended to Prosecuting Attorney, Fielding Potashnick in his loss of the Tommy Thompson case.

From the start, he did not have a chance of conviction.

The courts were against him.

The defendant was a Negro.

If a conviction could of becn secured it would of only been the beginning of a series of court fights.

The Supreme Court.

The Civil Rights' attorneys would of taken over the appeals and our country lawyers would of been up against some of the biggest shots in the law profession.

The jury has now spoken! An example has been set for other youths to expect no punishment for wrong doing!

Now we are expecting his attorneys to file suit against the state for damages for false arrest and unlawful detainer.

People have to learn to loaf, the same as they have to learn to work. We once knew a hard working man who was ordered by his doctor to take a two month's rest. Before he had gone a week, he was cutting kindling and sweeping walls for his landlady. He had to do something.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

It is best to stay away from beehives if you've been drinking. Bees may like honey but hate alcohol, and are likely to sting anyone who has its odor on his breath.

Ever wonder why you feel poorly on a rainy day? One reason is that your brain may not be getting as much oxygen as usual. Moisture-laden tissues swell and cut down the flow in blood vessels.

In Peru, as in Spain, it is bad manners — even insulting —to whistle for a taxi. According to a guidebook, it is best simply to "wave your hand or stand on the curb and hiss as loud as you can."

It is said that in this "age of anxiety" everybody is afraid of something. Science has classified at least 217 different kinds of phobias. But one that you rarely meet with in the average office worker is "kathisophobia — the fear of sitting down."

Incidentally, science —which seems to be measuring everything these days — has discovered that when the average man does sit down his posterior covers about 180 square inches and exerts a pressure of .92 pounds per square inch.

Quotable notables: "Common sense and good nature will do a lot to make the pilgrimage of life not so difficult." - W. Somerset Maugham.

How much is human life worth? Some 21,000 Americans commit suicide each year, among them hundreds of teenagers. Dr. Stanley Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, believes this number could be cut 25 per cent in five years by a concerted government drive.

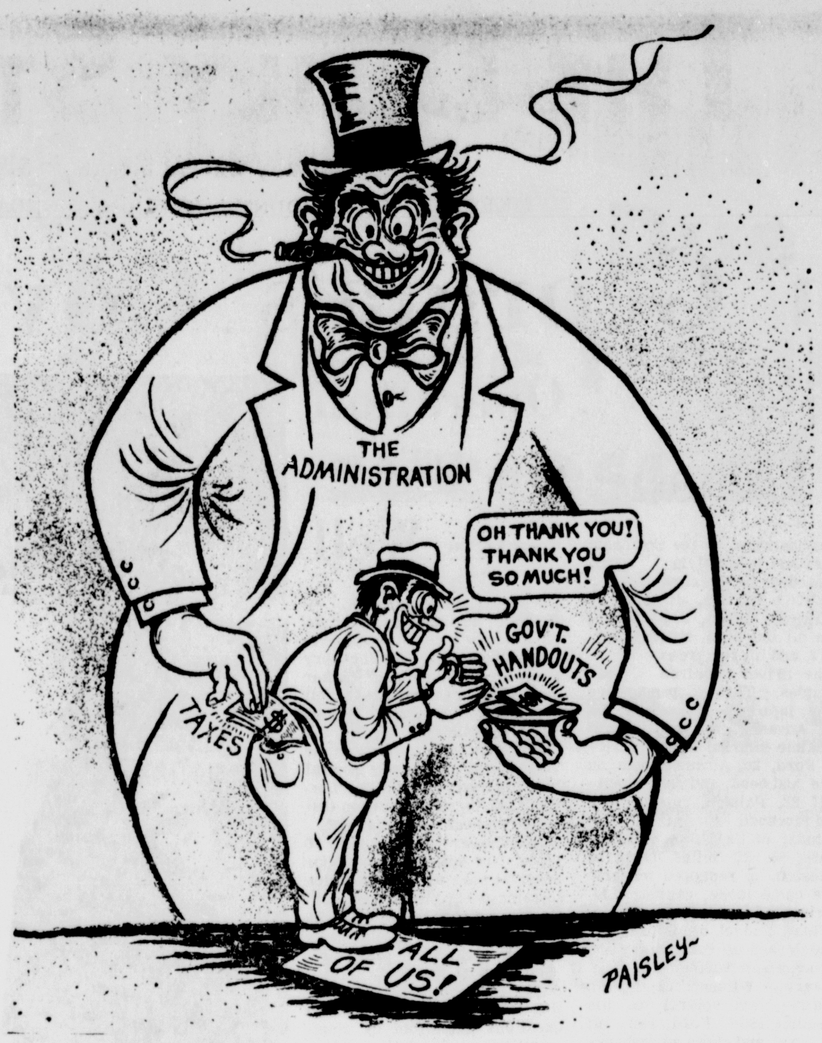
No one is safe from attack these days, not even Santa Claus. The jolly old saint is "too fat and creates an unhealthy image" for children, claims J. I. Rodsale, 68, publisher of Prevention, a health magazine. "After all, one can be slim and still be jolly."

Safety hint: If you hang a sprig of mistletoe in your home, be sure to place it out of reach of young fingers. Children have reportedly died as a result of eating mistletoe berries.

Worth remembering: "If a man's after money, he's money-mad. If he keeps it, he's a capitalist. If he spends it, he a playboy. If he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well. If he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite. And if he accumulates it after years of toil, people call him a fool who never gets anything out of life."

Folklore: If the first person you encounter on starting a journey is a barefoot woman, the only way to avoid terrible bad luck is to return home and start over again. Killing a spider will bring either poverty or rainfall. Sneezing will cause whatever you were thinking of at the time to come true. A horseshoe in his trunk of samples will help a salesman sell better, and give him a tired arm by nightfall, too.

It was Voltaire who first observed, "Ideas are like beards'; men do not have them until they grow up."



THE HEART IS STRENGTH

December is not bare
I think we can see more
Through winter's clearer air
Than we could see before.

The mists of green are gone
And flower-clouds pink-and-white,
But everywhere upon
The earth a soft still light

Lies like Christ's mantle thrown,
A splendor like a king's
On naked tree and stone
And all small growing things

That have the faith to start
Up, fearless of winter's length.
Now I see to the heart--
And, oh, the heart is strength!

AS YOU WATCH the burning logs in an open fireplace, remember what a woodsman has said about his campfire: "Every color or tint to which a tree is exposed during its life glows in the fire when that tree is burned. Look deep into the coals and you can find the pinks and violets of dawn, the blueness of the sky, the burning brightness of the noonday sun, the angry black of the thundercloud, the crimson of the sunset, the silver radiance of the moonlight and the brilliant transparency of the stars."

CERSORSHIP ISN'T THE ANSWER

A New York attorney, speaking to some 5,000 delegates to the American Trial Lawyers Association, said newsmen are being given a last chance to use "self-restraint" in coverage of trials before being put under legal restraints as to what can be reported. The attorney, Jaco D. Furchsberg, might more correctly have said that the public will be "legally" denied its right to information if newspapermen don't adhere to the restraints certain segments of the legal profession are trying to impose.

The New York lawyer did say he would prefer that newsmen be given free access to information about a case, then use the information with restraint. He then claimed: "But they don't do this. Saturation coverage is the rule in many instances." He also said "the purpose of trials is not to entertain the public, but to get fair justice for the litigant."

We have to admit that there are irresponsible lawyers and judges. But the irresponsible actions of a very few don't support outlawing the entire profession from doing the best job it can. There are lawyers who feel a trial is a place of entertainment. But there, as in the newspaper profession, are very, very few indeed.

The choice of the word "saturation" is questionable. We hope Mr. Fuchsberg isn't suggesting that newspapers fail to provide the public with all the pertinent facts as we certainly wouldn't suggest that he provide only a partial defense for any of his clients.

But let's face the real issue. The public is entitled to know what is going on in its communities. It is the newspaper's job to serve as a medium of information. If, as supporters of censorship claim, news accounts of crimes hinder the chances of a man getting a fair trial, we would have second thoughts on the issue. But they don't. Any accused person is protected with a variety of guarantees for a fair trial. For example, a prospective junior can be dismissed if he has formulated an opinion of guilt or innocence prior to the trial -- whether from what he has heard or read in newspaper. If an unprejudiced jury can't be found, a trial can be transferred to another community.

New trials have been awarded in some cases where coverage by the press, radio or television, was deemed excessive or contributed to an accused not getting a fair trial. The safeguards are there. Irresponsibility by the news media is very minor. Realizing these facts, one cannot justify cutting off the public's right to know. - Savannah (Ga.) Morning News.

DOES HE LIKE FOOTBALL?

THE YOUNG HUSBAND had settled himself in his favorite armchair and started to read the evening paper. His wife of a few months was sitting opposite him.

Pulling out her knitting, she remarked shyly, "I went to see the doctor today."

He continued reading for a minute, then looking up he asked absently, "Oh, did you dear? How is he?"

THOMAS EDISON believed that a town was progressive and wide awake in proportion to the development of its indoor and outdoor illumination.

He observed in his travels that in towns where there was inadequate illumination the people retired very early and seemed to be lazy and inefficient. In other cities where illumination had been developed, the people were lively and active until much later hours, and were generally more wide awake and progressive.

There may be some debate as to whether these people have illumination because they are progressive or whether they are progressive because they have illumination.

I am inclined to think, however, that good lighting helps to make for an active and healthy life. I have noticed that when I am in the country I get sleepy at a much earlier hour than I do in the city.

if you want to take a nap in the daytime, a movie is a very convenient retreat; if you want to stay awake at night get under the bright lights.

A scientist named Langdor Stookey says he is tired of having people get mad at him when they get his phone number by mistake. Once he answered the telephone and told the caller, 'Sorry, you've got the wrong number.' The party was very angry, crying, 'Then why did you answer?'

Stookey is constantly getting calls for Lucia, whoever she is. Now, instead of just correcting the caller, he says something like, 'She can't come to the phone. She's taking a bath.' The other party gets very suspicious and always says, 'Who's this?' Stookey plays it by ear from there and has a marvelous time.

DRESS TIPS: You can keep your shirt front smooth all day by grasping both sides of the body, at the waist, and making a deep, turn-back pleat in the extra cloth. Smooth, then tighten belt. . .Body friction, rather than washing, is the major cause of wear on shirts. A shirt, if not worn, will show no wear with 100 washings. . .Brown leather shoes or belts can be darkened by rubbing with milk with a few drops of household ammonia added. H. L. Hunt Says

THE ONE ANSWER TO CRIME

It seems that almost everyone today is trying to find the answer to crime. Committees and commissions are appointed, at the federal and the state level. Much money is spent on staffs and reports. Behind most of the suggestions made is the idea, spoken or unspoken, that poverty causes crime and that it can be reduced by some sort of handout or "public service" program.

Crime has nothing fundamentally to do with economics. Some of the poorest groups in this and other nations have been among the most honest. Some of the richest have been among the most criminal and corrupt.

Crime cannot be reduced by gifts and "aid". But it can be promoted by these methods. If government offers "something for nothing," it is natural for present or potential criminals to conclude that they have a right to get something for nothing on their own.

The primary preventive of crime is sound moral teaching in home, church and school. This is the responsibility of every parent, teacher and minister. Nobody else can assume that responsibility. The one answer to crime that government can offer is effective law enforcement, which will deter from crime those who have rejected or never had, sound moral teachings.

In the words of former Supreme Court Justice Whittaker: "The remedy is as plain as the threat. It is simply to insist that our governments, state and federal, reassume and discharge their first duty of protecting the people against lawless invasions upon their persons and property by the impartial and vigorous enforcement of our criminal law." HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - When Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, formerly of the Supreme Court, spoke on behalf of the court before the Gridiron Club, he joshed his old friend and colleague, Justice William O. Douglas, by saying that Douglas did not "believe in monogamy."

What Goldberg said was off the record. So was Douglas's sour reaction.

What Goldberg referred to, of course, was the fact that Bill Douglas is the most married man in Supreme Court history, having now taken his fourth wife, 23-year-old Cathleen Heffernan, a blond, boyishly bobbed former cocktail waitress.

His first marriage in 1923, to Mildred Riddle of La Grande, Ore., lasted 30 years. They met on the faculty of Yakima, Wash., high school and he spent his most difficult yet most fruitful years with her - through law school at Columbia, his service on the Securities and Exchange Commission and finally his elevation to the Supreme Court.

His second wife was vivacious Mercedes Hester Davidson, a Louisiana girl, divorced from an assistant secretary of the interior. Their marriage lasted from 1954 to 1963.

The third marriage was to brown-haired Joan Martin, a 23-year-old student at Allegheny College in Pennsylvania when Douglas met her. This marriage lasted 30 months.

VIEWS ON MATRIMONY

Despite his succession of wives, Justice Douglas regards matrimony according to his dissent in the Supreme Court's O.K. of the Connecticut anti-contraceptive law - as a "coming together for better or for worse, hopefully enduring and intimate to the degree of being sacred."

And his former wives say he really believes this. Without exception they speak of him with affection. Some were hurt when he decided to follow a life elsewhere; but they regard their years with him as a stimulating chapter for which they have no regret.

His second wife, now Mrs. Robert Eichholz, has advised her ex-husband on some of his problems and even entertained the present Mrs. Douglas.

Their marriage failed, she says, because she found the Washington limelight uncomfortable and could not keep up with her 66-year-old husband.

"I faltered at the pace of his thousand things to do each day," she said. Douglas's age was not a factor, she added. It was she who lacked stamina, who found it difficult to adjust to one of the most famous Washington figures. Public exposure was uncomfortable and lonliness oppressive.

DOUGLAS' LEGAL RECORD

Regardless of his matrimonial failures, and despite proposals of southern legislators to impeach him, Douglas will probably rank as one of the great jurists to sit on the Supreme Court. For more than a quarter of a century, his brilliant ringing opinions have made history, first as dissents, now representing the majority.

His colleagues on the bench speak of Douglas with esteem and affection. Sometimes they wish he would not scribble letters while arguments are being heard; but they admit that the sudden questions Bill fires at attorneys proves he is missing nothing.

Douglas' rugged individualism was forced, they suggest, in the snowy mountains and along the wild rivers of his native Washington state. He came to know poverty and fear and, with an idealist's fervor, wants to rid the world of them.

"I suggest," says Justice Hugo Black, who did his best to dissuade Douglas from getting his first divorce, "that he must have come into this world with a rush and that his first cry must have been a protest against something he saw at a glance was wrong or unjust."

Justice Abe Fortas, who once worked under Douglas at Yale and on the securities and exchange commission, and who now sits beside him on the highest court, calls him a man with "strength rooted in sensitivity, freedom founded upon struggle, and compassion emerging from pain."

The one great disappointment in Douglas' life came in 1944 when President Roosevelt gave a letter to Democratic National Chairman Bob Hannegan saying he would be "glad to go with either" Douglas or Harry S. Truman as vice president - in that order. Hannegan later confessed he had the letter rewritten, reversing the order. So Truman, not Douglas, was nominated.

Had it not been for this transposition, Douglas might have become president of the United States.

He had hungered for a chance to transform his ideals into reality. He chafed at the post-war drift of American foreign policy. The cold war deeply disturbed him.

So today, Bill Douglas, white-haired, but ruddy of complexion and with the physique of a man of 40, devotes himself to horses, hiking and his latest wife, Cathleen, who has decided to study Mandarin for a visit to China, and who at 23 tramps with her 68-year-old husband in the mountains where Douglas once wrote, "Man can find deep solitude and, under conditions of grandeur that are startling, he can come to know himself and God."

Hoffa May Strike Nation's Truckers For Billion Dollar Raise.

Washington, D. C. -- The horse may make a momentary comeback this winter. Jimmy Hoffa is preparing to negotiate a massive master national freight over - the - road haulage contract. And he is in his most gracious "I don't get ulcers -- I give them" mood.

Thousands of truck owners, who have banded together in a unique common front, have in a series of secret policy sessions decided to stand up to "Jimmy" when they sit down to bargain next Jan. 15.

They're as tough as Hoffa and his Teamsters' Brotherhood. They can match him muscle for muscle, million for million, mind for mind and strategem for strategem. So he may strike them.

Behind him will be some 450,000 over - the - road drivers from 300 locals speaking with one voice -- his. And what the voice of the turtle - necked masses now is demanding will come to well over a billion dollars at the end of the three year contract.

Actually this estimate is low. One has to work this beat with a computor as well as a typewriter these days.

Hoffa's demands -- formulated with the roaring consent of some 800 delegates to a conference here the other week -- run all the way from $2 breakfasts, $3 lunches, $6 dinners on Sundays and holidays to a wage boost which would come to upward of seven or eight per cent.

From inside the Teamsters' Brotherhood comes word that it will ask for a 75 cent-an-hour raise over three years. For 40 hours, this would total a $30-a-week increase per man -- without the special pay for special runs, and special shifts and special hours.

Not the least of what Hoffa will seek is an increase of $7 per man per week to be added to the $16.50 per man already being paid by the truckers into the billion dollars' worth of pension, health and welfare funds piled up around the country.

But that's not all. Hoffa will bid for more holidays, more sick days, longer vacations and such interim items as four days funeral leave, jury duty pay and allowances for protective clothing when his men must work outside. There will also be much business about sleeper cabs and an effort to make piggybacks (truck bodies on railroad cars) more costly.

All of which proves that Jimmy Hoffa has had more than the Supreme Court on his mind.

It will be a mad whirl when it gets started -- because it will all have to be wound up in some ten weeks. The contract expires on March 31.

The truck owners have been preparing for the winter offensive. They'll be dug in on a line ranging from advance industrial and communications headquarters in Washington, to strategists in New York and Chicago. Some three years ago, as this column was the first to reveal, the operators decided to band together so they would not be whipsawed by Hoffa and his allies inside the truckers ranks themselves.

They organized a unique front called the Trucking Employers, Inc. -- TEI. It had no headquarters and for a while kept its executive secretary anonymous and received its mail at a Chicago post office box.

But now it is out front. Its president is in Memphis. Its legal brain is in Washington. Its public relations people are in New York.

They speak for many thousands of the 40,000 over-the-road trucking companies which operate under federal license. TEI's front line is made up of 82 knowledgeable truck owners who develop national labor relations policies to deal with Hoffa and his sprawling fraternity.

They appoint small negotiating committees. They have the power to ratify or reject labor contracts. They speak for the big and the small.

In turn, the 82 also speak for 30 local and regional trucking associations. Truly it is a massive answer to massive trade unionism.

They sign a national master freight agreement -- which should be of interest only to those who eat, sleep, travel by air or sea and need supplies for construction etc.

This is made up of broad general clauses. There are 30 other over - the - road and local agreements which are called supplements.

All this Hoffa handles like old Douglas Fairbanks in the "Mark of Zorro" on the late, late show. He dashes, and slashes and grins and takes on the enemy hordes single-handed.

Watch it closely. It will be the liveliest show of the year. Supreme Court or no Supreme Court.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Christmas giving should be primarily to children and they may be neglected this year.

The United Fund has been prolonged. More than 75 per cent of the goal has been reached but the effort to obtain the balance extends into the Christmas season.

A campaign to raise building funds for the Missouri Delta Community hospital overlaps the United Fund campaign and has been underway throughout the year.

Sikeston residents have many places to put money. Churches and other organizations are waging their traditional campaigns to raise funds. All are worthy.

But Sikeston residents this year could easily overlook another charity - the Tree of Lights, sponsored by firemen.

Contributions, which light the evergreen tree in American Legion Park, are especially important because they stay at home and brighten Christmas for our neighbors' children.

The funds are used to purchase toys for needy children, who either will not be remembered at Christmas or who will get only meager gifts.

Sometimes new programs capture attention and attract a more receptive public.

There is much competition for the giver's dollar in this pre-Christmas season of tight money, high taxes and more than the usual number of fund raising campaigns.

These conditions do not detract from the worthiness of the firemen's project.

The first obligation of Sikeston people is to take care of their own. The Tree of Lights conforms to this philosophy and brings Christmas brightness to children of the community. Indifference will produce a dark, gloomy holiday for our children, who should be remembered. It will be symbolized by a dark tree in the park.

More than ninety-three per cent of your Christmas Seal dollar stays in Missouri to help fight TB and other respiratory diseases.

While his liberal philosophy never meshed with the conservative viewpoint, there is no doubt but that Senator Douglas served his constituents from the standpoint of a devoted love for people, a dedicated idealism and with a willingness to serve honestly and with unselfish use of his own talents.

He was in the Senate more than 18 years and as a former professor he contributed much to that body from his background as an economics professor.

Many others, who have served that long, have grown away from the people they served. Senator Douglas did grow old on the job but he never grew away from the people.

Others long in public service chose to stay in Washington in appointive jobs because of their growing isolation from the people back home who put them in office. This is often an injustice and unfair to the people, who have rejected their philosophy and chosen to limit their service by defeating them at the polls.

There are many of these lame duck officials in the Washington bureaucracy, unwanted by the people, who must continue to support them financially.

What the bureaucracy usually needs and doesn't get is an infusion of new life and ideas by practitioners close to the people and responsive to their will not the bumbling attempts of exhausted office holders determined to finish their days on the public payroll at any cost in the peculiar, detached political climate along the banks of the Potomac far from the folks back home.

Many vain men assume that once the people elect them to office they owe them a living the rest of their lives. That just isn't the case or at least it shouldn't be the case.

Douglas is not one of these.

He says that a defeated officeholder should not accept a political appointment.

He wants to go back to the life of a citizen rather than "hang around the fringes."

Douglas can make a greater contribution that way. The people - his friends and neighbors - can benefit from his counsel and he can contribute much to their understanding of the problems of government.

Douglas is a man who never lost the common touch after he went to Washington and has maintained a love for the people, who repeatedly elected him to the Senate. In defeat, he hasn't rejected them.

He can hold his head up when he packs his bag and leaves the capital.

A big man in the broadest meaning of the term will be returning home.

SAFETY COSTS LESS PER MILE

Don't get us wrong. We're all for road-salting when the wintry blizzards and sleet storms sweep down on us - as they presently will. And we hope our highway people use plenty of it - until science comes up with something better than sodium chloride or calcium chloride, which it hasn't yet.

But we are getting concerned about reports that these self-same salts in some localities eat through body panels and fenders in a single winter. After reading the National Safety Council reports that 175,000 school buses were in daily use carrying 12,500,000 of our children, we have a right to be uneasy about their safety. And there's grave concern over the cost to us as taxpayers- for state inspectors have been barring buses from the roads long before their time. Their inspections have shown rust not only penetrating the body panels but also gnawing almost through the main side ribs that hold up the roof.

Fortunately, however, there is a solution - discovered, tested and proved by a leading builder of school buses who anticipated this growing challenge as long ago as 1954. Through the use of zinc-dipped body sheets, says Chief Engineer Roy Hartman of Superior Coach Corporation, a 66-passenger bus selling for $6,000 to $8,500 (depending on extras) gives up to 50 percent longer life - for an added cost of less than $100!

As a result of this pioneering, major bus builders, including Bluebird, Carpenter Body Works, Divco-Wayne, Ward Body Works and Dodge Division of Chrysler, are now taking advantage of the protection of zinc. Three states - Texas, North Carolina and Florida - now specify mill galvanized steel sheet for the protection of their school children. And in Washington this December, the National Conference on School Transportation is considering revision of its "Minimum Standards for School Buses" to recommend national adoption of zinc-coated steel for all school bus bodies.

It seems obvious that if zinc-coating pays off in safety and in miles-per-dollar for school buses, the manufacturers of trucks will discover its advantages, and the day may come when we will greet the lovely falling snow once more with all the enthusiasm of our childhood.

And we can hope, too, that Santa's sleigh will be galvanized this year!

Our sympathy is extended to Prosecuting Attorney, Fielding Potashnick in his loss of the Tommy Thompson case.

From the start, he did not have a chance of conviction.

The courts were against him.

The defendant was a Negro.

If a conviction could of becn secured it would of only been the beginning of a series of court fights.

The Supreme Court.

The Civil Rights' attorneys would of taken over the appeals and our country lawyers would of been up against some of the biggest shots in the law profession.

The jury has now spoken! An example has been set for other youths to expect no punishment for wrong doing!

Now we are expecting his attorneys to file suit against the state for damages for false arrest and unlawful detainer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

It is best to stay away from beehives if you've been drinking. Bees may like honey but hate alcohol, and are likely to sting anyone who has its odor on his breath.

Ever wonder why you feel poorly on a rainy day? One reason is that your brain may not be getting as much oxygen as usual. Moisture-laden tissues swell and cut down the flow in blood vessels.

In Peru, as in Spain, it is bad manners — even insulting — to whistle for a taxi. According to a guidebook, it is best simply to "wave your hand or stand on the curb and hiss as loud as you can."

It is said that in this "age of anxiety" everybody is afraid of something. Science has classified at least 217 different kinds of phobias. But one that you rarely meet with in the average office worker is "kathisophobia — the fear of sitting down."

Incidentally, science — which seems to be measuring everything these days — has discovered that when the average man does sit down his posterior covers about 180 square inches and exerts a pressure of .92 pounds per square inch.

Quotable notables: "Common sense and good nature will do a lot to make the pilgrimage of life not so difficult." - W. Somerset Maugham.

How much is human life worth? Some 21,000 Americans commit suicide each year, among them hundreds of teenagers. Dr. Stanley Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, believes this number could be cut 25 per cent in five years by a concerted government drive.

No one is safe from attack these days, not even Santa Claus. The jolly old saint is "too fat and creates an unhealthy image" for children, claims J. I. Rodsalo, 68, publisher of Prevention, a health magazine. "After all, one can be slim and still be jolly."

Safety hint: If you hang a sprig of mistletoe in your home, be sure to place it out of reach of young fingers. Children have reportedly died as a result of eating mistletoe berries.

Worth remembering: "If a man's after money, he's moneymad. If he keeps it, he's a capitalist. If he spends it, he a playboy. If he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well. If he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite. And if he accumulates it after years of toil, people call him a fool who never gets anything out of life."

Folklore: If the first person you encounter on starting a journey is a barefoot woman, the only way to avoid terrible bad luck is to return home and start over again. Killing a spider will bring either poverty or rainfall. Sneezing will cause whatever you were thinking of at the time to come true. A horseshoe in his trunk of samples will help a salesman sell better, and give him a tired arm by nightfall, too.

It was Voltaire who first observed, "Ideas are like beards'; men do not have them until they grow up."

THE HEART IS STRENGTH

December is not bare
I think we can see more
Through winter's clearer air
Than we could see before.

The mists of green are gone
And flower-clouds pink-and-white,
But everywhere upon
The earth a soft still light

Lies like Christ's mantle thrown,
A splendor like a king's
On naked tree and stone
And all small growing things

That have the faith to start
Up, fearless of winter's length.
Now I see to the heart--
And, oh, the heart is strength!

AS YOU WATCH the burning logs in an open fireplace, remember what a woodsman has said about his campfire: "Every color or tint to which a tree is exposed during its life glows in the fire when that tree is burned. Look deep into the coals and you can find the pinks and violets of dawn, the blueness of the sky, the burning brightness of the noonday sun, the angry black of the thundercloud, the crimson of the sunset, the silver radiance of the moonlight and the brilliant transparency of the stars."

CERSORSHIP ISN'T THE ANSWER

A New York attorney, speaking to some 5,000 delegates to the American Trial Lawyers Association, said newsmen are being given a last chance to use "self-restraint" in coverage of trials before being put under legal restraints as to what can be reported. The attorney, Jaco D. Furchsberg, might more correctly have said that the public will be "legally" denied its right to information if newspapermen don't adhere to the restraints certain segments of the legal profession are trying to impose.

The New York lawyer did say he would prefer that newsmen be given free access to information about a case, then use the information with restraint. He then claimed: "But they don't do this. Saturation coverage is the rule in many instances." He also said "the purpose of trials is not to entertain the public, but to get fair justice for the litigant."

We have to admit that there are irresponsible lawyers and judges. But the irresponsible actions of a very few don't support outlawing the entire profession from doing the best job it can. There are lawyers who feel a trial is a place of entertainment. But there, as in the newspaper profession, are very, very few indeed.

The choice of the word "saturation" is questionable. We hope Mr. Fuchsberg isn't suggesting that newspapers fail to provide the public with all the pertinent facts as we certainly wouldn't suggest that he provide only a partial defense for any of his clients.

But let's face the real issue. The public is entitled to know what is going on in its communities. It is the newspaper's job to serve as a medium of information. If, as supporters of censorship claim, news accounts of crimes hinder the chances of a man getting a fair trial, we would have second thoughts on the issue. But they don't. Any accused person is protected with a variety of guarantees for a fair trial. For example, a prospective junior can be dismissed if he has formulated an opinion of guilt or innocence prior to the trial -- whether from what he has heard or read in newspaper. If an unprejudiced jury can't be found, a trial can be transferred to another community.

New trials have been awarded in some cases where coverage by the press, radio or television, was deemed excessive or contributed to an accused not getting a fair trial. The safeguards are there. Irresponsibility by the news media is very minor. Realizing these facts, one cannot justify cutting off the public's right to know. - Savannah (Ga.) Morning News.

THOMAS EDISON believed that a town was progressive and wide awake in proportion to the development of its indoor and outdoor illumination.

He observed in his travels that in towns where there was inadequate illumination the people retired very early and seemed to be lazy and inefficient. In other cities where illumination had been developed, the people were lively and active until much later hours, and were generally more wide awake and progressive.

There may be some debate as to whether these people have illumination because they are progressive or whether they are progressive because they have illumination.

I am inclined to think, however, that good lighting helps to make for an active and healthy life. I have noticed that when I am in the country I get sleepy at a much earlier hour than I do in the city.

Darkness, artificial or natural, suggests sleep; light, artificial or natural, suggests activity.

If you want to take a nap in the daytime, a movie is a very convenient retreat; if you want to stay awake at night get under the bright lights.

Stookey is constantly getting calls for Lucia, whoever she is. Now, instead of just correcting the caller, he says something like, 'She can't come to the phone. She's taking a bath.' H. L. Hunt Says

THE ONE ANSWER TO CRIME

It seems that almost everyone today is trying to find the answer to crime. Committees and commissions are appointed, at the federal and the state level. Much money is spent on staffs and reports. Behind most of the suggestions made is the idea, spoken or unspoken, that poverty causes crime and that it can be reduced by some sort of handout or "public service" program.

Crime has nothing fundamentally to do with economics. Some of the poorest groups in this and other nations have been among the most honest. Some of the richest have been among the most criminal and corrupt.

Crime cannot be reduced by gifts and "aid". But it can be promoted by these methods. If government offers "something for nothing," it is natural for present or potential criminals to conclude that they have a right to get something for nothing on their own.

The primary preventive of crime is sound moral teaching in home, church and school. This is the responsibility of every parent, teacher and minister. Nobody else can assume that responsibility. The one answer to crime that government can offer is effective law enforcement, which will deter from crime those who have rejected or never had, sound moral teachings.

In the words of former Supreme Court Justice Whittaker: "The remedy is as plain as the threat. It is simply to insist that our governments, state and federal, reassume and discharge their first duty of protecting the people against lawless invasions upon their persons and property by the impartial and vigorous enforcement of our criminal law." Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - When Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, formerly of the Supreme Court, spoke on behalf of the court before the Gridiron Club, he joshed his old friend and colleague, Justice William O. Douglas, by saying that Douglas did not "believe in monogamy."

What Goldberg said was off the record. So was Douglas's sour reaction.

What Goldberg referred to, of course, was the fact that Bill Douglas is the most married man in Supreme Court history, having now taken his fourth wife, 23-year-old Cathleen Heffernan, a blond, boyishly bobbed former cocktail waitress.

His first marriage in 1923, to Mildred Riddle of La Grande, Ore., lasted 30 years. They met on the faculty of Yakima, Wash., high school and he spent his most difficult yet most fruitful years with her - through law school at Columbia, his service on the Securities and Exchange Commission and finally his elevation to the Supreme Court.

His second wife was vivacious Mercedes Hester Davidson, a Louisiana girl, divorced from an assistant secretary of the interior. Their marriage lasted from 1954 to 1963.

The third marriage was to brown-haired Joan Martin, a 23-year-old student at Allegheny College in Pennsylvania when Douglas met her. This marriage lasted 30 months.

VIEWS ON MATRIMONY

Despite his succession of wives, Justice Douglas regards matrimony according to his dissent in the Supreme Court's O.K. of the Connecticut anti-contraceptive law - as a "coming together for better or for worse, hopefully enduring and intimate to the degree of being sacred."

And his former wives say he really believes this. Without exception they speak of him with affection. Some were hurt when he decided to follow a life elsewhere; but they regard their years with him as a stimulating chapter for which they have no regret.

His second wife, now Mrs. Robert Eichholz, has advised her ex-husband on some of his problems and even entertained the present Mrs. Douglas.

Their marriage failed, she says, because she found the Washington limelight uncomfortable and could not keep up with her 66-year-old husband.

"I faltered at the pace of his thousand things to do each day," she said. Douglas's age was not a factor, she added. It was she who lacked stamina, who found it difficult to adjust to one of the most famous Washington figures. Public exposure was uncomfortable and lonliness oppressive.

DOUGLAS' LEGAL RECORD

Regardless of his matrimonial failures, and despite proposals of southern legislators to impeach him, Douglas will probably rank as one of the great jurists to sit on the Supreme Court. For more than a quarter of a century, his brilliant ringing opinions have made history, first as dissents, now representing the majority.

His colleagues on the bench speak of Douglas with esteem and affection. Sometimes they wish he would not scribble letters while arguments are being heard; but they admit that the sudden questions Bill fires at attorneys proves he is missing nothing.

Douglas' rugged individualism was forced, they suggest, in the snowy mountains and along the wild rivers of his native Washington state. He came to know poverty and fear and, with an idealist's fervor, wants to rid the world of them.

"I suggest," says Justice Hugo Black, who did his best to dissuade Douglas from getting his first divorce, "that he must have come into this world with a rush and that his first cry must have been a protest against something he saw at a glance was wrong or unjust."

Justice Abe Fortas, who once worked under Douglas at Yale and on the securities and exchange commission, and who now sits beside him on the highest court, calls him a man with "strength rooted in sensitivity, freedom founded upon struggle, and compassion emerging from pain."

The one great disappointment in Douglas' life came in 1944 when President Roosevelt gave a letter to Democratic National Chairman Bob Hannegan saying he would be "glad to go with either" Douglas or Harry S. Truman as vice president - in that order. Hannegan later confessed he had the letter rewritten, reversing the order. So Truman, not Douglas, was nominated.

Had it not been for this transposition, Douglas might have become president of the United States.

He had hungered for a chance to transform his ideals into reality. He chafed at the post-war drift of American foreign policy. The cold war deeply disturbed him.

So today, Bill Douglas, white-haired, but ruddy of complexion and with the physique of a man of 40, devotes himself to horses, hiking and his latest wife, Cathleen, who has decided to study Mandarin for a visit to China, and who at 23 tramps with her 68-year-old husband in the mountains where Douglas once wrote, "Man can find deep solitude and, under conditions of grandeur that are startling, he can come to know himself and God."

They sign a national master freight agreement -- which should be of interest only to those who eat, sleep, travel by air or sea and need supplies for construction etc.

This is made up of broad general clauses. There are 30 other over - the - road and local agreements which are called supplements.

All this Hoffa handles like old Douglas Fairbanks in the "Mark of Zorro" on the late, late show. He dashes, and slashes and grins and takes on the enemy hordes single-handed.

Watch it closely. It will be the liveliest show of the year. Supreme Court or no Supreme Court.

Miss Barbara Gregg Weds Johnnie Eugene Daniels

PARMA - Miss Barbara Jane Gregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gregg was wed Nov. 24 to Johnnie Eugene Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Daniels, in the First Baptist church.

The Rev. Gayford Lawrence, pastor of the church, officiated as the couple recited the sacred vows in a double ring ceremony at 7 p.m.

The church was decorated with a large candelabra with baskets of gladioli at each side. A kneeling bench and candles in the windows completed the setting.

Organ music was provided by Mrs. Betty Wagner and Mrs. Delilah Jaynes sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire waist dress with bodice and sleeves of brocade and skirt of satin. Her headdress was a crown of sequins securing a waist-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations surrounding an orchid and ribbon streamers down either side, atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Sharon Medlin, of Cape Girardeau, was matron of honor. Miss Jeanette Williams and Miss Phyllis Gregg, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore identical street-length dresses of peach brocade with empire waist and long sleeves. The flower girls, Paula Morgan, of Barlow Ky., and Kim Daniels wore white satin dresses with peach brocade collars and cuffs. Each carried a gold flower basket of lilac carnations.

Glendle Medlin of Cape Girardeau served as best man and Joe Daniels and Kenneth Gregg were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gregg wore a three-piece blue knit suit with black accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Daniels, mother of the groom, wore a blue collarless dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

The reception was held in the Masonic dining hall. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth. A three tiered wedding cake decorated with peach-color roses centered the table. The top layer of the cake was on columns. Punch bowls were placed on either side of the cake. The attendants of the bride served.

For the wedding trip to Reelfoot Lake, the bride wore a green velvet suit with a crepe blouse and wore white irridescent heels. Her attire was complemented with an orchid corsage.

The bride attended Parma high school and graduated in May. She is employed as secretary in the Parma elementary school.

Daniels is a 1966 graduate of Parma high school. He is a mechanic employed at the Daniels Service Station.

During summer vacation, my college son often took his old car and went off by himself to the movies or to bowl. One afternoon I came home to find a postcard addressed to him and postmarked from a neighboring city where juvenile deliquency was rife. It carried this threat: "If you know what's good for you, RUN!" There was no signature. I thought of the switchblade gang wars splashed in current headlines, and my heart sank as I imagined my son involved.

Later in the day he came in, glanced casually at the card, tossed it aside and sauntered upstairs. I followed him anxiously, and confessed that I had read it.

"Oh, that," he laughed. "It's from the captain of the cross-country team at college. He's reminding me to get in training before the fall term."

2 Die as Train Traps Scouts on Snowy Trestle

BRIGHTON, Mich. (AP) — "Grab the boy and jump! Grab the boy and jump!"

Engineer Lawrence Green shouted to the fleeing figures as his train bore down on them on a snowy trestle.

Despite braking power fully applied, the Chesapeake & Ohio freight ground on down the tracks and brought tragedy to a Boy Scout hike Saturday.

Howard T. Lovell, 50, leader of Detroit Troop 586, and John Gresham, 11, a member of the troop, were killed. Both were from Detroit.

Lovell died apparently trying to shoo young Gresham to safety when the train, going 55 miles an hour, caught the Scouts by surprise on the Huron River trestle in Island Lake State Park.

Another Scout, 14 - year - old Kevin Connors, 14, of Detroit, broke a leg when he jumped 30 feet to the ground.

State police said Connors is deaf and did not hear the train's whistle. He jumped because he saw the others scrambling for safety, officers said.

Thirty-four Scouts escaped harm, some of them by leaping from the trestle as Connors did.

Engineer Green, 62, of Inkster said the train had rounded a curve about 200 yards from the trestle when he saw the boys.

The Scouts chose the trestle route, which has "no trespassing" signs on each end, as a short cut from their campsite to an area a mile away where they planned a cookout, police said.

(TULSA) - A housewife of my acquaintance says campaign platforms are like the cereals she buys for the children--30 per cent of the package is pure air.

There's a joke going around that Okla. Gen. Fred Harris, who rode th President's coattails two years ago, was being asked by a reporter if Lyndon Johnson's sagging popularity would be a factor in the Harris race this year.

Harris replied: "Lyndon who?"

This year's campaign has certainly crystalized the important issues facing the State of Oklahoma: The balance of payments situation abroad, conduct of the war in Viet Nam, inflation, the national debt, and whether Oklahoma University ought ever again to schedule Notre Dame.

George Nigh, a candidate for lieutenant governor, said he used to have a devil of a time remembering names.

"I whipped that problem by taking old Dale Whatshisname's memory course."

Oran Captures Tournament Championship

By RON JAYNES

ORAN -- Jutting into an early second quarter lead and staying there the Oran Eagles downed the Illmo-Scott City Rams 76-51 Saturday night for the championship of the Oran invitational tournament.

The Rams had been seeded first before the tourney started.

Scott Central's Braves, surprised the Delta Bobcats and made quick work of them scalping the Cats in a 82-47 rout for third place in the preliminary game.

A packed house was on hand to see the top-seeded team fall in the final of a tourney that posted only one upset, that for the championship.

ISC's loss was their second of the season, and both coming at the hands of the Oran Eagles.

Oran won the championship by coming from behind in the second quarter after trailing, 17-16 at the end of the first period.

Oran netted five quick points at the opening of the second period while ISC scored only one, and the Eagles were on top to stay as they held a 21-18 lead with 6:03 remaining in the first half.

The Oran advance was led by center John Johnson's 26 points and his vicious rebounding. John's cousin, Fred Johnson, netted 12 points for the winners while Don Evans chipped in 10 points to round out the Eagles double figure scorers.

Oran held a 29-22 edge with 3:49 left in the first half and from there it was just a question of how much Oran could score.

Oran, executing a full-court press for the length of the game ran and shot its way into the championship circle for the third time in the past three seasons. The Eagles took first in 1964 and 1965 while Illmo failed to place last season but won the title in 1962 and placed second in 1963 and 1964.

Oran's speed and ISC's mistakes took their toll. The Rams were forced into taking bad shots early in the second quarter while the Eagles worked the ball either for a good layup or a good 20-foot jumper which the players hit with consistency.

With 2:08 remaining in the first half the Eagles held a 36-24 lead before the Rams cut it to 38-30 at the end of the half.

As the second half opened, the Rams took the opening tip but missed on a jumper and before long the Eagles had raced into a 46-32 lead with only 5:41 remaining in the third period.

Don Evans and Fred Johnson, Eagle starters, got into foul trouble early in the third period and had to be replaced by Garron Hanley and Tim Halter, who took command of the Eagles rebounding and ball stealing and led the Oran quintet into a commanding lead.

Hanley and Halter pulled down clutch rebounds, scored clutch baskets and filled the shoes as the Eagles two starters well.

ISC ignited a full court press with 1:03 remaining in the third period and closed the Eagles' lead to 50-39 at the end of the period.

In 42 seconds of the fourth period the Eagles had shot to a 54-39 lead on a driving layup by Hanley and a steal and layup by Halter. The Eagles opened their lead to 58-39 with 6:33 left in the game, due mostly to three Ram mistakes, that gave the ball over to the Eagles.

John Johnson began working hard on the Rams defense in the fourth quarter as he wheeled and dealed for easy layins time after time. With only 5:06 left in the game he had paced the Eagles into a 60-41 lead, putting the game almost out of reach.

The loss of starting guard, Steve Sanford, dealt the ISC Rams a severe blow with only 4:28 left in the game. Oran had little trouble with the visitors from that moment on.

Oran held its biggest lead of the night. With only 1:02 left in the game, they held a 74-47 lead.

Oran was led in the defensive department by Guard Kirby Hahn, who held the Rams high scoring Mike Crabtree to 12 points. He has been averaging around 25 points per game.

Eagle Coach, Gene Bess, had nothing but praise for his team's effort and stated "each boy played good defense and gave all they had the entire game" and "our (Oran) boys did a fine job rebounding with the much taller ISC team."

In the consolation game, it was only the matter of how much the Braves would score as they raced into an early 28-14 lead with 4:04 left in the first half, after holding only a 20-14 first quarter lead.

Gary Owens' 22-point production and teammates' Randy Boley and Terry Bell 17 and 15 points respectively led the Braves to third place in the tourney, their second such trophy in the last two seasons.

The Braves played a fine defensive game, forcing the Bobcats into mistakes.

Trophies were awarded to the first, second, third and consolation bracket winners as well as a sportsmanship trophy, which went to the Delta squad.

Bullpups Drop Two At Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- Sikeston junior high dropped two games Saturday afternoon to the Poplar Bluff Mules. Bluff took the B game 42-27 and eased past the Bullpups in the A game 48-37.

Sikeston jumped out into an early 7-5 lead in the A game and seemed to have everything under control after leading 17-16 at intermission. But the second half was too much for the Pups. Moss netted nine points the last quarter to send his Mules' team ahead for good.

Bluff went ahead in the closing minutes of the third period and eked out a 31-28 edge after the period.

Sikeston fell back due mostly to rebounding. The Pups high rebounder pulled down only six as the Mules controlled the backboards.

Leading the Bluff quintet to victory was Moss who ended the game with 13 points. He was followed by Link, who netted 12 points.

Dye and Cartwright took high scoring honors for Sikeston as they netted 12 and 10 points respectively.

Coach Murray Sullivan said that he was pleased with the performance of his team. Although they lost, they showed good hustle and hit 11 of 15 free throws.

Bluff took command of the B game early. He raced into a 16-5 first quarter lead and used reserves the rest of the game.

Harrington paced the Pups B squad in the scoring column. He poured in 15 points equaling Bluff's high scorer Parris.

Sikeston junior high will play host to Richland tonight at the junior high school at 6:30 p.m. This will be an A game.

Hayti Wraps Up Tourney

STEELE -- Hayti, which disclosed an offense that can hit from anywhere, downed Holcomb Saturday night to win the championship of the South Pemiscot invitational tournament 62-46.

As the first quarter ended, Hayti led 22-15.

Hayti really put its defense to work in the second period, allowing Holcomb only 9 points and going in front by 11, 40-29, to end the first half.

As play was resumed the last half, Holcomb still could not penetrate the Hayti defense. Both went into a slump. Hayti outscored the Hornets 9-5, raising the score to 49-34. With the fourth quarter getting underway, Holcomb sunk three quick buckets to close the gap to an 8-point lead by the Indians, but the Hornets couldn't get any closer. The Hayti Indians went on to win.

B. Johnson and Watkins led the scoring for the victors netting 23 and 18 respectively. Nails led Holcomb with a slim 8 points.

In the other game, Campbell was stunned in the first quarter by number one seeded South Pemiscot 26-11. The Bulldogs furthered the score in the second period, leading at the half 45-22. Pemiscot picked up their pace in the third quarter and again in the fourth and came on to win by a 30 point margin. Tyler, the Bulldogs post man who has averaged well over 20 points per game, was held to only 5 points.

from ages 18 and over. Prepare now for U.S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competiton is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service has helped thousands prepare for these tests every year since 1948. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

Hayti Wraps Up Tourney

STEELE -- Hayti, which disclosed an offense that can hit from anywhere, downed Holcomb Saturday night to win the championship of the South Pemiscot invitational tournament 62-46.

Running up an unbelievable margin, first - ranked South Pemiscot stomped the Campbell Camels 82-52 in the consolation game.

As the first quarter ended, Hayti led 22-15.

Hayti really put its defense to work in the second period, allowing Holcomb only 9 points and going in front by 11, 40-29, to end the first half.

As play was resumed the last half, Holcomb still could not penetrate the Hayti defense. Both went into a slump. Hayti outscored the Hornets 9-5, raising the score to 49-34. With the fourth quarter getting underway, Holcomb sunk three quick buckets to close the gap to an 8-point lead by the Indians, but the Hornets couldn't get any closer. The Hayti Indians went on to win.

B. Johnson and Watkins led the scoring for the victors netting 23 and 18 respectively. Nails led Holcomb with a slim 8 points.

In the other game, Campbell was stunned in the first quarter by number one seeded South Pemiscot 26-11. The Bulldogs furthered the score in the second period, leading at the half 45-22. Pemiscot picked up their pace in the third quarter and again in the fourth and came on to win by a 30 point margin. Tyler, the Bulldogs post man who has averaged well over 20 points per game, was held to only 5 points.

Notre Dame Captures Richland Tournament

BY DAN SPEARS

ESSEX -- Losing a hard fought battle, the Richland Rebels dropped their fourth game of the season last night, this time to Notre Dame in the finals of the Richland Invitational 59-55. This was the second consecutive title for the Bulldogs. The Rebels have placed second the last three years.

In the consolation bracket, Bell City slipped past Morehouse 62-53.

Notre Dame controlled the tip of the opening quarter and took an early 4-0 lead. Netting only one additional point in five minutes Richland jumped out to lead with three minutes remaining in the period 10-5. With both teams sacking 10 apiece in the final three minutes, Richland found themselves leading 20-15 at the end of the first period. With Notre Dame driving and presenting superb ball control, it regained its lead with 17 seconds remaining in the half 31-30. The Bulldogs led at the intermission 33-30.

In the second half Notre Dame jumped to an early seven-point lead 39-32. Having 2 minutes, 35 seconds left in the third quarter, Richland tied the score 40-40. Notre Dame still led at the end of three periods- 48-44.

Scoring a total of 3 points between them in the first 5 minutes of play in the final period, Notre Dame held its lead, 49-46. With seconds remaining the Bulldogs hit two free tosses to assure their win 59-55.

In the consolation game, Bell City upeneded Morehouse 60-53, to take third place honors. Neither team made much headway in the first period, each netting 13. At the end of the half, Bell City held a one-point margin, 24-23. Bell City dumping seven straight charity tosses by Terry Hesselrode 3, and Ernest Hooster 4. Here Bell City adopted their seven-point margin and went on to win 60-53.

SEMO Indians Clash With Southwest Mo. Tonight at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Conference-favorite Southwest Missouri visits here tonight for an 8 p.m. game with Southeast Missouri in Houck Field House.

The game will be the second MIAA conference encounter for both squads. Southeast Saturday met second-ranked Central Missouri, while Southwest was engaged at the same time at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

Both teams had 2-1 records prior to Saturday's games, coach Charles Parsley's Indians losing to Harris Teachers and Bill Thomas' Bears to Washburn University.

The Springfield squad enters the game a heavy favorite, despite the loss to mononucleosis of forward Don Carlson, who led the team in rebounding in last season's championship drive.

Freshman Curtis Perry, a 6-6 jumping-jack apparently equal in rebounding ability, will be in the lineup in place of Carlson, who is also 6-6. Filling out the big Bear front line are 6-5 all-conference forward Dan Bolden and 6-7 center Louis Shepherd.

Bolden leads the team in scoring average with more than 20 per game, while Shepherd has 15 per game in the early going.

In the back line, Southwest will go with veteran Phil Shannahan at 6-4, and either Jim Gummersbach (5-11) or Wayne Rieschel (6-0).

Parsley will be faced with the choice of trying to offset the Bears' height advantage or of conceding the boards and trying for an offsetting advantage of speed.

The Indian coach, with four veterans in his lineup, has been looking for a fifth man who can add shooting and rebounding punch to the attack.

Sophomore center Charles Davenport, 6-6, has been drawing the starting spot, with R. C. Grossheider, 6-4, alternating. Both are potentially strong rebounders, although neither has established a sure claim to a starting position.

Junior guard Pete Ulmer 6-2, has shown the all-around ability to play, and offers Parsley the advantages of both speed and rebounding ability. Should strategy call for a running game, Ulmer would see considerable action.

Among the four veterans, forward Dan Milligan is the leading scorer with a 20.6 average. Guard Curtis Williams follows with 19.9, while center Kermit Meystedt has 14.3 and guard Charlie Bertrand 13.0. Meystedt is the leading rebounder with a 16.0 average, followed by Milligan with 11.3 and Grossheider with 9.0.

Howardville Takes Two From Portageville

HOWARDVILLE -- Sweeping into their third win of the season, the Howardville Hawks made easy work of the Portageville Bulldogs Saturday night. They crushed them, 108-53.

Charlie Glasper netted 30 points and paced the Hawks' scoring attack. He was followed by Lewis Little, who hit 18 points and pulled down as many rebounds.

Howardville rushed into a 22-10 first quarter lead and held commanding leads in each quarter. They held a 44-22 half-time lead and posted a 79-37 lead going into the final quarter.

Moore and Clay paced the Bulldogs scoring attack, netting 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Hawks also captured the B game, taking a 45-43 win.

Ernest Willis poured in 13 points to take high scoring honors. Williams took high honors for Portageville as he collected 12 points.

Celtics Snap 76ers String

BOSTON AP - The Boston Celtics, bidding for a ninth straight National Basketball Association title, face a do-it-yourself task and they're confident they can overtake the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Division race.

The Celtics posted their sixth straight victory and snapped Philadelphia's 11-game winning streak by defeating Walt Chamberlain & Co. for the second time in three meetings 117-103 Sunday night.

In the only other game played, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Cincinnati Royals 119-118 on the West Coast as Jerry West scored a jump shot with 28 seconds to play. The loss was the seventh straight for the Royals.

"It's a long season and even if we had lost I wouldn't have been too upset," Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell said. "I still think we'll beat them in the long run."

The victory was the 21st in 26 games for the Celtics, but they still trail the 76ers by 3 1/2 games. Philadelphia, which has lost to only one other club, boasts a fantastic 26-3 mark. The two rivals have seven regular season meetings left.

Lions Sign All-America Halfback Nick Eddy

DETROIT AP - Nick Eddy, the All-America halfback from Notre Dame, was signed by the Detroit Lions Sunday in hopes he can provide them with a breakaway running threat.

The Lions outbid Denver of the American Football League to sign him to a National Football League contract. Eddy was redshirted one year and was drafted by both clubs last year.

No one would discuss contract terms, but the money was estimated to be around $250,000.

Eddy is 6-feet-tall and weighs 205. He compiled a 5.6 rushing average at Notre Dame in three years and caught 44 passes for 708 yards. He turned in outstanding performances on kick returns.

Eddy was named the most valuable player on Notre Dame's national championship team and finished third in the voting for the Heisman Award.

My Neighbors

12-YEAR PRAYER

On vacation in Baltimore after finishing the 5th grade, I saw a girl with glasses crawling on the grass with a magnifying lens. Curious, I struck up a conversation with her. Pat took me home to a collection of pets, mounted insects, and books. We have been "best friends" ever since, even though I lived in New York City and we saw each other only once or twice a year.

Despite our many shared interests, we fought vehemently over religion. Pat being set upon a Franciscan novitiate while I was steeped in the theories of modernism, science, and psychoanalysis, to say nothing of inherited violent anti-Catholic prejudices.

Pat and I lost touch in college days, while I became increasingly disillusioned and bitter--until I met my future husband, a Catholic! Robert practically dragged me to Father for instructions, while I determined to fight to the finish. However, Father's intelligence and patient efficiency in answering all my objections and false preconceptions soon led to my Baptism and a totally new life.

When I got in touch with Pat again she told me she had been praying for my conversion daily for 12 years.

Scoring a total of 3 points between them in the first 5 minutes of play in the final period, Notre Dame held its lead, 49-46. With seconds remaining the Bulldogs hit two free tosses to assure their win 59-55.

In the consolation game, Bell City upeneded Morehouse 60-53, to take third place honors. Neither team made much headway in the first period, each netting 13. At the end of the half, Bell City held a one-point margin, 24-23. Bell City dumping seven straight charity tosses by Terry Hesselrode 3, and Ernest Hooster 4. Here Bell City adopted their seven-point margin and went on to win 60-53.

Howardville Takes Two From Portageville

HOWARDVILLE -- Sweeping into their third win of the season, the Howardville Hawks made easy work of the Portageville Bulldogs Saturday night. They crushed them, 108-53.

Charlie Glasper netted 30 points and paced the Hawks' scoring attack. He was followed by Lewis Little, who hit 18 points and pulled down as many rebounds.

Howardville rushed into a 22-10 first quarter lead and held commanding leads in each quarter. They held a 44-22 half-time lead and posted a 79-37 lead going into the final quarter.

Moore and Clay paced the Bulldogs scoring attack, netting 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Hawks also captured the B game, taking a 45-43 win.

Ernest Willis poured in 13 points to take high scoring honors. Williams took high honors for Portageville as he collected 12 points.

Celtics Snap 76ers String

BOSTON AP - The Boston Celtics, bidding for a ninth straight National Basketball Association title, face a do-it-yourself task and they're confident they can overtake the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Division race.

The Celtics posted their sixth straight victory and snapped Philadelphia's 11-game winning streak by defeating Walt Chamberlain & Co. for the second time in three meetings 117-103 Sunday night.

In the only other game played, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Cincinnati Royals 119-118 on the West Coast as Jerry West scored a jump shot with 28 seconds to play. The loss was the seventh straight for the Royals.

"It's a long season and even if we had lost I wouldn't have been too upset," Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell said. "I still think we'll beat them in the long run."

The victory was the 21st in 26 games for the Celtics, but they still trail the 76ers by 3 1/2 games. Philadelphia, which has lost to only one other club, boasts a fantastic 26-3 mark. The two rivals have seven regular season meetings left.

Lions Sign All-America Halfback Nick Eddy

DETROIT AP - Nick Eddy, the All-America halfback from Notre Dame, was signed by the Detroit Lions Sunday in hopes he can provide them with a breakaway running threat.

The Lions outbid Denver of the American Football League to sign him to a National Football League contract. Eddy was redshirted one year and was drafted by both clubs last year.

No one would discuss contract terms, but the money was estimated to be around $250,000.

Eddy is 6-feet-tall and weighs 205. He compiled a 5.6 rushing average at Notre Dame in three years and caught 44 passes for 708 yards. He turned in outstanding performances on kick returns.

Eddy was named the most valuable player on Notre Dame's national championship team and finished third in the voting for the Heisman Award.

SEMO Indians Clash With Southwest Mo. Tonight at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Conference-favorite Southwest Missouri visits here tonight for an 8 p.m. game with Southeast Missouri in Houck Field House.

The game will be the second MIAA conference encounter for both squads. Southeast Saturday met second-ranked Central Missouri, while Southwest was engaged at the same time at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

Both teams had 2-1 records prior to Saturday's games, coach Charles Parsley's Indians losing to Harris Teachers and Bill Thomas' Bears to Washburn University.

The Springfield squad enters the game a heavy favorite, despite the loss to mononucleosis of forward Don Carlson, who led the team in rebounding in last season's championship drive.

Freshman Curtis Perry, a 6-6 jumping-jack apparently equal in rebounding ability, will be in the lineup in place of Carlson, who is also 6-6. Filling out the big Bear front line are 6-5 all-conference forward Dan Bolden and 6-7 center Louis Shepherd.

Bolden leads the team in scoring average with more than 20 per game, while Shepherd has 15 per game in the early going.

In the back line, Southwest will go with veteran Phil Shannahan at 6-4, and either Jim Gummersbach (5-11) or Wayne Rieschel (6-0).

Parsley will be faced with the choice of trying to offset the Bears' height advantage or of conceding the boards and trying for an offsetting advantage of speed.

The Indian coach, with four veterans in his lineup, has been looking for a fifth man who can add shooting and rebounding punch to the attack.

Sophomore center Charles Davenport, 6-6, has been drawing the starting spot, with R. C. Grossheider, 6-4, alternating. Both are potentially strong rebounders, although neither has established a sure claim to a starting position.

Junior guard Pete Ulmer 6-2, has shown the all-around ability to play, and offers Parsley the advantages of both speed and rebounding ability. Should strategy call for a running game, Ulmer would see considerable action.

Among the four veterans, forward Dan Milligan is the leading scorer with a 20.6 average. Guard Curtis Williams follows with 19.9, while center Kermit Meystedt has 14.3 and guard Charlie Bertrand 13.0. Meystedt is the leading rebounder with a 16.0 average, followed by Milligan with 11.3 and Grossheider with 9.0.

12-YEAR PRAYER

On vacation in Baltimore after finishing the 5th grade, I saw a girl with glasses crawling on the grass with a magnifying lens. Curious, I struck up a conversation with her. Pat took me home to a collection of pets, mounted insects, and books. We have been "best friends" ever since, even though I lived in New York City and we saw each other only once or twice a year.

Despite our many shared interests, we fought vehemently over religion. Pat being set upon a Franciscan novitiate while I was steeped in the theories of modernism, science, and psychoanalysis, to say nothing of inherited violent anti-Catholic prejudices.

Pat and I lost touch in college days, while I became increasingly disillusioned and bitter--until I met my future husband, a Catholic! Robert practically dragged me to Father for instructions, while I determined to fight to the finish. However, Father's intelligence and patient efficiency in answering all my objections and false preconceptions soon led to my Baptism and a totally new life.

When I got in touch with Pat again she told me she had been praying for my conversion daily for 12 years.

New Yearbook Agriculture Reflects Usda Services

How the U. S. Department of Agriculture's services are woven into the fabric of American life is reflected in CONSUMERS ALL, the 1965 Yearbook of Agriculture. Packed into 496 pages are thousands of how-to-do-it facts for everyday living.

The book presents practical results of the USDA's efforts to make the lives of people healthier, happier, and more fulfilling, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman points out in his foreword. Two of every three dollars of USDA expenditures are spent for services of major benefit to all of us as consumers.

The first section of the Yearbook deals with choosing, buying, renting, heating, cooling, lighting, painting and protecting houses. Another tells how to plan and equip kitchens, dining rooms, bathrooms, living rooms, bedrooms, children's rooms, laundry and work rooms.

Later chapters give practical advice on gardens, lawns, trees and patios. Fifteen chapters about clothing include discussions of shoes, stretch fabrics, new fibers, mending and so on.

Food is given major attention -- including diets for weight watchers, savings in buying food, and suggestions for preparing meats, vegetables, dairy products, bread, beverages and more.

"Though a primary objective of the Department is service to U.S. farmers and ranchers," Secretary Freeman states, "the real beneficiary of agricultural productivity and abundance has been, is now, and will continue to be the American consumer."

"Today less than 19 percent of the average American's take-home pay is spent for food," the Secretary observes. "Only about 15 years ago the proportion was 26 percent. In Russia today the average family spends half of its income for food; in Japan, more than two-fifths; in England and France, almost one-third."

He notes that "fore more than 100 years, the Department of Agriculture has been, in Lincoln's words a 'people's department' -- a Department for producers and users of the essentials of living, for homemakers, for consumers. A Department, in short, for all of us."

The Yearbooks are distributed mainly by members of Congress, each of whom has a number for free distribution. However, CONSUMERS ALL, can be bought at $2.75 from the Superintendent of Documents, the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. The Agriculture Department has no copies for general distribution.

Carol Singing in Schools Queried

CLEVELAND, Ohio AP -- The American Civil Liberties Union of Greater Cleveland says singing Christmas carols in public schools may be a violation of the principle of separation of church and state.

In a letter sent to school principals last week, the ACLU said:

"It would appear logically inevitable to conclude that all forms of Christmas celebration in the public schools are in some degree a violation.

"Many of the most important Christmas carols are highly regarded precisely because of their profound religious message. Displays and pageants of the nativity scene are similarly definite expressions of faith."

The letter, signed by Chairman Bernard A. Berkman, also said symbols of the Jewis Hanukkah as well as Christian symbols are "not materially different from other forms of prayer in the schools" and therefore "constitutionally forbidden."

The ACLU conceded, however, that Christmas music can have "musical importance or secular cultural significance" that justifies its inclusion in music recitals.

Arnold Man Of Year In Dexter

He was presented a plaque at the Chamber's annual dinner meeting, "for outstanding service to his community."

The presentation was made Friday night by Allen Robinson, of Cape Girardeau, an executive of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the community service program in the Cape Girardeau area.

Arnold has served the past 11 years as secretary of the Dexter chamber. He is a member of the Dexter board of education, a lay leader in the First Methodist church, an active worker in producing Dexter's annual fall festival and has assisted in the campaign to build a hospital at Dexter.

Lower Auto Taxes Win Assesor Favor

CAPE GIRARDEAU --Southeast Missouri assessors, many of whom were out of accord with 1966 motor vehicle increases imposed by the state tax commission, have endorsed a lower assessment schedule set by the commission for 1977.

Assessors from 14 counties gathered here to discuss assessing problems. The major item considered was the assessment of automobiles. Several of the counties did not assess along the guidelines set by the commission last year and were directed to comply.

Assessors said the new schedule more nearly approaches the 30-per-cent-of-value standard prevailing on other assessments. Last year the commission standard, they said, was 40 per cent of actual value.

In other action, the assessors expressed interest in possible legislation under which the state would levy taxes on real estate transactions.

Silver Star for Malden Soldier

TAY NINE, South Vietnam -- S-Sgt. Lester Armstrong of Malden, has received the silver star medal for galantry in action Nov. 4, in Tay Ninh, a province in South Vietnam.

During a search and destroy operation, Co. C., 3rd Bn, 21st Inf., 196th Lt. Inf. Bde, was attempting to maneuver into such a position as to better augment the fire of an American Unit pinned down by an estimated Viet Cong Battalion when Armstrong and his platoon also became pinned down. A bunker with three Viet Congs armed with a machinegun and protected on both flanks by six Viet Congs in dugout positions blocked their advance.

The dense jungle undergrowth made movement almost impossible. In the maze of vines and roots Armstrong's machine gunner became entangled and could not move forward with the rest of the platoon. Realizing the importance of the weapon for protection, Armstrong rushed through enemy fire toward the soldier, picked up the gun and with another member of his platoon assaulted the bunker. Hit in the arm and leg by the burning fragments of a grenade he increased his fire and totally wiped out the six Viet Congs. Then concentrating his fire on the machinegun bunker he quickly knocked out the three Viet Congs in position. His platoon then continued forward without further casualties.

Armstrong, who has been in the Army for seven yars, plans to make the Army his career. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Armstrong lives on Route Two, Malden.

Silver Star for Malden Soldier

TAY NINE, South Vietnam -- S-Sgt. Lester Armstrong of Malden, has received the silver star medal for galantry in action Nov. 4, in Tay Ninh, a province in South Vietnam.

During a search and destroy operation, Co. C., 3rd Bn, 21st Inf., 196th Lt. Inf. Bde, was attempting to maneuver into such a position as to better augment the fire of an American Unit pinned down by an estimated Viet Cong Battalion when Armstrong and his platoon also became pinned down. A bunker with three Viet Congs armed with a machinegun and protected on both flanks by six Viet Congs in dugout positions blocked their advance.

The dense jungle undergrowth made movement almost impossible. In the maze of vines and roots Armstrong's machine gunner became entangled and could not move forward with the rest of the platoon. Realizing the importance of the weapon for protection, Armstrong rushed through enemy fire toward the soldier, picked up the gun and with another member of his platoon assaulted the bunker. Hit in the arm and leg by the burning fragments of a grenade he increased his fire and totally wiped out the six Viet Congs. Then concentrating his fire on the machinegun bunker he quickly knocked out the three Viet Congs in position. His platoon then continued forward without further casualities.

Armstrong, who has been in the Army for seven yars, plans to make the Army his career. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Armstrong lives on Route Two, Malden.

Giant Christmas Tree in Dexter

DEXTER -- A 22-foot Christmas tree decorated with many colored lights is adorning the corner of Locust and Stoddard Street. The Christmas tree is an annual Project of the Dexter Jaycees to help beautify the downtown area during the holiday season.

It will also be the setting for the Community Chorus and Dexter school chorus when they sing the next two Saturdays.

Girl Tries to End Service Academy Ban

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Carla Hammond, 17, a Middletown high school senior, is shooting for another first to add to her list.

She wants to attend a United States service academy.

She wrote to Rep.-elect Donand E. Lukens about the prospects. Her mother, Mrs. John Hammond, says it's "definitely not a gag."

"She's very serious about it," Mrs. Hammond said. Both parents support Carla's goal.

"Carla is very seriously interested in architecture and the enticement of a fully paid tuition has something to do with it," Mrs. Hammond said.

"We strongly believe in equality for women, and women have been discriminated against since time immemorial. Actually Carla has every right to serve her country as much as her brothers do. She has the intelligence."

"In her letter, Carla told Lukens, Republican, she believes it is as "essential for every girl to be educated to her full potential as it is for every boy."

Carla stated she believes she has an "equal right to compete for admission to tax-supported military academies."

She was not specific which one she wants to attend—Army, Navy or Air Force.

Mrs. Hammond said her daughter was the first girl permitted to study mechanical drawing at Youngstown High School after a battle with school authorities. The following year, there were 15 girls in the class.

More recently, Carla was the first white exchange student to attend the all-Negro Mather School in Beaufort, S.C.

John Schrote, a Lukens' aide, said, "I'm somewhat sympathetic with her on this discrimination against women. The first thing though, will be to establish if there are regulations concerning the sex of appointees to the academies."

PARENT'S MIDDLESCENCE COMPLICATES ADOLESCENCE

By Louise Chase

At the very moment that adolescents are struggling to achieve their adult identity -- with all the heartache that entails for them and their families -- their parents are living through a struggle just as shattering: Facing the fact that their youth is over, that middle-age is overtaking them.

These two struggles, and not just the orneriness of youth, often lie at the heart of the conflict between adolescents and their parents, according to observations made at a recent medical meeting here by Dr. Edward J. Hornick, associate professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City.

Dr. Hornick pointed out that parents going through the 'prime of life crisis' are forced to realize that they are not going to achieve their youthful dreams. Without being aware of it, they sometimes try to make their children fulfill their frustrated ambitions. Conflicts result.

BURGEONING SEXUALITY THREATENING

Then, too, just as the adolescent boy or girl is reaching the peak of physical development, the parents have to acknowledge their own thickening middles, lined faces. Envy and jealousy may then affect the relationship of parents and adolescent, Dr. Hornick warned.

The burgeoning sexuality of the adolescent, compared to the diminishing sexuality of the parents, may be exceedingly distressing to the latter. When parents set limits for their adolescent children are they doing so for the benefit of the adolescent? Or, the doctor asked, are they a projection of the parents' own sexual fears?

The father who is defeated at tennis for the first time, by his gangling 18 - year -old may react harshly to his son's request to borrow the family car. Similarly, the mother beset by menopausal fears even as she admires her daughter's ripening figure, may be outraged by her daughter's request for a new dress. What are the causes of the parents/ emotion? The adolescents/ demands -- or some thing else the parents can't face?

Example of parents suffering mental or physical breakdowns when their children leave the family next are numerous, Dr. Hornick observed. Mothers frequently experience depression serious enough to require medical attention when their sons go off to college. Fathers sometimes have heart attacks soon after their daughters move into their own apartment.

All this is not to say, Dr. Hornick pointed out, that adolescence is not a stormy, difficult period in our society. It is. But parents who come to terms gracefully with their own middle - escence are apt to be able to enjoy (and bear) their children's adolescence.

"Defender of the Faith"

The title of "Defender of the Faith" was conferred upon Henry VIII, ruler of England, by the Pope, in 1521, as a reward for the king's treatise against Martin Luther.

Four states bear the title Commonwealth — Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Convicts to Give Kidneys To 2 Women

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Two convicts who say they have nothing to lose and nothing to gain except self-respect are donating kidneys to two women, so they can give hope for life to others.

They are Bill Watson, 34, and Ben Crippen, 35, both serving life sentences in the Arkansas State Prison.

"Both of us have got more time than we can do," Watson said Thursday. "We've got nothing to lose. This is about the only way we can help somebody."

Crippen is scheduled to donate one of his kidneys in about two weeks to Lillie Lewis, 48, of Earle, Ark.

Both Mrs. Ratliff and Mrs. Lewis had their diseased kidneys removed and life has been sustained with an artificial kidney. Their chances of receiving a successful transplant are slightly better than 50 per cent, according to Dr. William J. Flanigan, a member of a kidney transplant team at the medical center that has had nine successful transplants out of 15.

In an interview at the medical center, where they are not under guard, Watson and Crippen said they approached the operations with some anxiety, but felt the benefits would be great.

"A person has to keep his self-respect all the time," Watson said. "The penitentiary is no place to keep it. When someone hollers for help you try to help."

"I've done an awful lot of wrong," Crippen said. "When you can help you do it. I think I'll be giving Mrs. Lewis the best Christmas present I can."

The two say they expect no leniency from prison authorities because of their donations.

My husband, a casualty from the Battle of the Bulge, was being flown home. Although he had nearly recovered from his wounds, a couple of young Air Corps medics were handling him as though his days were numbered. Wounded combat infantrymen didn't come to Chanute Field in Illinois every day. Slowly and carefully they drove the ambulance to the hospital, and gently carried the stretcher up a stairway to a side entrance. At the top of the stairs the medic in front ran into a problem: the screen door opened out, and he could not let go of the stretcher:

Perceiving the situation, my husband jumped off the stretcher and opened the door, bowing graciously. After the astonished boys carried the stretcher inside, my husband climbed back on, and they continued on their way -- but not nearly so carefully.

Mrs. Dick Pollock.

THE MOON had its picture taken Nov. 23 by Lunar Orbiter II and this is the result of the first close-up view. The picture is of the crater Copernicus, one of the most outstanding features on the face of the moon. Mountains rising from the flat surface of the crater are 1,000 feet high with slopes of 30 degrees. Lunar Orbiter was 28.4 miles above the surface of the moon and about 150 miles south of Copernicus when the picture was taken.

Girl Tries to End Service Academy Ban

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Carla Hammond, 17, a Middletown high school senior, is shooting for another first to add to her list.

She wants to attend a United States service academy.

She wrote to Rep.-elect Donand E. Lukens about the prospects. Her mother, Mrs. John Hammond, says it's "definitely not a gag."

"She's very serious about it," Mrs. Hammond said. Both parents support Carla's goal.

"Carla is very seriously interested in architecture and the enticement of a fully paid tuition has something to do with it," Mrs. Hammond said.

"We strongly believe in equality for women, and women have been discriminated against since time immemorial. Actually Carla has every right to serve her country as much as her brothers do. She has the intelligence."

"In her letter, Carla told Lukens, Republican, she believes it is as "essential for every girl to be educated to her full potential as it is for every boy."

Carla stated she believes she has an "equal right to compete for admission to tax-supported military academies."

She was not specific which one she wants to attend—Army, Navy or Air Force.

Mrs. Hammond said her daughter was the first girl permitted to study mechanical drawing at Youngstown High School after a battle with school authorities. The following year, there were 15 girls in the class.

More recently, Carla was the first white exchange student to attend the all-Negro Mather School in Beaufort, S.C.

John Schrote, a Lukens' aide, said, "I'm somewhat sympathetic with her on this discrimination against women. The first thing though, will be to establish if there are regulations concerning the sex of appointees to the academies."

PARENT'S MIDDLESCENCE COMPLICATES ADOLESCENCE

By Louise Chase

At the very moment that adolescents are struggling to achieve their adult identity -- with all the heartache that entails for them and their families -- their parents are living through a struggle just as shattering: Facing the fact that their youth is over, that middleage is overtaking them.

These two struggles, and not just the orneriness of youth, often lie at the heart of the conflict between adolescents and their parents, according to observations made at a recent medical meeting here by Dr. Edward J. Hornick, associate professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City.

Dr. Hornick pointed out that parents going through the 'prime of life crisis' are forced to realize that they are not going to achieve their youthful dreams. Without being aware of it, they sometimes try to make their children fulfill their frustrated ambitions. Conflicts result.

BURGEONING SEXUALITY THREATENING

Then, too, just as the adolescent boy or girl is reaching the peak of physical development, the parents have to acknowledge their own thickening middles, lined faces. Envy and jealousy may then affect the relationship of parents and adolescent, Dr. Hornick warned.

The burgeoning sexuality of the adolescent, compared to the diminishing sexuality of the parents, may be exceedingly distressing to the latter. When parents set limits for their adolescent children are they doing so for the benefit of the adolescent? Or, the doctor asked, are they a projection of the parents' own sexual fears?

The father who is defeated at tennis for the first time, by his gangling 18 - year -old may react harshly to his son's request to borrow the family car. Similarly, the mother beset by menopausal fears even as she admires her daughter's ripening figure, may be outraged by her daughter's request for a new dress. What are the causes of the parents/ emotion? The adolescents/ demands -- or some thing else the parents can't face?

Example of parents suffering mental or physical breakdowns when their children leave the family next are numerous, Dr. Hornick observed. Mothers frequently experience depression serious enough to require medical attention when their sons go off to college. Fathers sometimes have heart attacks soon after their daughters move into their own apartment.

All this is not to say, Dr. Hornick pointed out, that adolescence is not a stormy, difficult period in our society. It is. But parents who come to terms gracefully with their own middle - escence are apt to be able to enjoy (and bear) their children's adolescence.

"Defender of the Faith"

The title of "Defender of the Faith" was conferred upon Henry VIII, ruler of England, by the Pope, in 1521, as a reward for the king's treatise against Martin Luther.

Four states bear the title Commonwealth — Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Convicts to Give Kidneys To 2 Women

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Two convicts who say they have nothing to lose and nothing to gain except self-respect are donating kidneys to two women, so they can give hope for life to others.

They are Bill Watson, 34, and Ben Crippen, 35, both serving life sentences in the Arkansas State Prison.

"Both of us have got more time than we can do," Watson said Thursday. "We've got nothing to lose. This is about the only way we can help somebody."

Crippen is scheduled to donate one of his kidneys in about two weeks to Lillie Lewis, 48, of Earle, Ark.

Both Mrs. Ratliff and Mrs. Lewis had their diseased kidneys removed and life has been sustained with an artificial kidney. Their chances of receiving a successful transplant are slightly better than 50 per cent, according to Dr. William J. Flanigan, a member of a kidney transplant team at the medical center that has had nine successful transplants out of 15.

In an interview at the medical center, where they are not under guard, Watson and Crippen said they approached the operations with some anxiety, but felt the benefits would be great.

"A person has to keep his self-respect all the time," Watson said. "The penitentiary is no place to keep it. When someone hollers for help you try to help."

"I've done an awful lot of wrong," Crippen said. "When you can help you do it. I think I'll be giving Mrs. Lewis the best Christmas present I can."

The two say they expect no leniency from prison authorities because of their donations.

My husband, a casualty from the Battle of the Bulge, was being flown home. Although he had nearly recovered from his wounds, a couple of young Air Corps medics were handling him as though his days were numbered. Wounded combat infantrymen didn't come to Chanute Field in Illinois every day. Slowly and carefully they drove the ambulance to the hospital, and gently carried the stretcher up a stairway to a side entrance. At the top of the stairs the medic in front ran into a problem: the screen door opened out, and he could not let go of the stretcher:

Perceiving the situation, my husband jumped off the stretcher and opened the door, bowing graciously. After the astonished boys carried the stretcher inside, my husband climbed back on, and they continued on their way -- but not nearly so carefully.

Mrs. Dick Pollock.

Washington's Triumph

IN HIS HANDS HE HELD THE PAPER HE HAD WAITED SIX BITTER YEARS FOR: BRITISH SURRENDER

It was nine o'clock on the morning of October 17, 1781. Around the little Chesapeake port of Yorktown, the earth shook and the sky itself seemed about to crack open from the continuous crash of 100 cannon, pouring round after brutal round into and over the crumbling dirt parapets protecting what was left of a once proud British army.

Crouched in their siege trenches only 200 yards away, watching French and American soldiers wondered how much longer flesh and blood could endure such point-blank pounding. Allied gunners had knocked out every British cannon. Every house in town was a battered ruin. The harbor was full of burnt and sunken ships. Beyond, the masts of 36 vigilant French battleships blocked hope of escape by sea.

Suddenly atop the parapet in the center of the British works appeared a small red-coated figure, beating vigorously on a drum. "Had we not seen . . .the red coat when he first mounted," Lieutenant Ebenezer Denny of Pennsylvania said later, "He might have beat till doomsday. The constant firing was too much for the sound of a single drum." A moment later, a British officer waving a white handkerchief appeared and began walking toward the American lines, accompanied by the drummerboy.

There was suddenly, unbelieveably, silence, as every gun ceased firing and the only sound that of the drummerboy beating away. "I thought I never heard a drum equal to it," Denny says. "It was the most delightful music to us all."

The officer carried an historic letter to General George Washington from Lord Cornwallis. "Sir, I propose a cessation of hostilities for 24 hours and that two officers may be appointed by each side to meet at Mr. Moore's house to settle terms for surrender of the posts at York and Gloucester."

Washington received the letter without any sign of emotion. But inwardly, he must have trembled. Here were the words he had waited six long bitter years to see, at the last desperate moment.

Already, in Europe, France was moving toward a separate peace with England, in which American independence would have been just one of many items to be traded across the table by the world's two greatest powers. It was the French fleet that had trapped Cornwallis on the Chesapeake shore, French guns that supplied most of the shot and shell that had hammered Cornwallis to his knees, French money that had financed the American march to Yorktown. With this victory, American delegates could insist on independence.

But Cornwallis was not captured yet. In New York, the British fleet was putting to sea on that very day with another British army under Sir Henry Clinton crammed aboard, to make a frantic attempt to relieve Cornwallis. The French Admiral, de Grasse, had already threatened to sail away to keep a date with the Spanish in the West Indies. There was no time to waste. Washington's crisp reply decalred his "ardent desire to spare the further effusion of blood" but he gave Cornwallis exactly two hours to state what terms he hoped to get.

Cornwallis, every hopeful of seeing the British fleet on the horizon, complained morosely but complied. The British were down to their last 100 mortar shells. Over 2,000 men were sick or wounded. The rest were all but completely demoralized by eight days and nights of relentless bombardment.

Cornwallis's answer was unsatisfactory and Washington decided to state his terms. He and his aides spent most of the night working on a letter. Meanwhile, he generously ordered the allied cannon to cease fire, and the men in the trenches enjoyed their first night of peaceful sleep in over a week. It was interrupted on the British side by a ghastly accident.

The artillery commander ordered his cannoneers to spend the night filling mortar and howitzer shells with powder, in case the shooting began again the next day. The artillery-men stole some brandy and got thoroughly drunk before they went to the powder magazine. Someone was careless with a candle. The magazine and 13 soldiers suddenly went skyward in an enormous explosion.

At dawn, a strange sound came drifting out of the British lines --the bagpipers of the Scottish 76th Regiment were saluting their conquerors. Not to be outdone, the band of the French Royal Deux-Ponts Regiment replied. Slowly then, the sun rose on an astonishing scene. From one end of the British lines to the other, the parapets were crowded with men and officers, and on the Allied side the ramparts were eqaully full. Both armies simply stared at each other, and the torn silent battlefield, as if they were seeing it all for the first time.

Washington's terms were delivered that morning. He told Cornwallis his men would be "marched to such parts of the country as can. . .provide for their subsistence." Once more he gave him two hours to accept--or a "renewal of hostilities" would take place. By noon Cornwallis accepted, and appointed two aides to meet with two of Washington's aides to work out in final form the "articles of capitulation."

The delegates met at the Moore House, a simply white frame cottage, still standing at Yorktown. They spent the day haggling over details that were very important to soldiers in the 18th century. The British wanted ot march out with the "honors of war," which included the right to fly flags and salute the victors with some of their own music. Colonel John Laurens, the American negotiator, adamantly refused. Only a year before he had been part of the American army that surrendered to the British at the siege of Charlestown, South Carolina, and the British had refused them this privilege.

"But," said the British aide, "my Lord Cornwallis did not command at Charlestown."

"It is not the individual that is here considered," Laurens grimly replied, "it is the nation."

Washington got the final terms around midnight, and had them written out in three copies by morning. Under each article, he calmly wrote his approval or rejection--and sent them into the British lines for Cornwallis to sign first. He then rode to Redoubt Number Ten, a stone's throw from the British lines, where he was joined by the French commander, the Count de Rochambeau, and one of the French admirals, Count de Barras. Other ranking officers crowded around. Finally, the papers arrived. Washington signed without a word. So did the French. Washington told an aide to place above the signatures: "Done in the trenches before Yorktown in Virginia, October 19, 1781."

Now only the formal ceremony remained. For this, the British even issued new uniforms to anyone who needed them. Just beyond the trenches the allied armies formed two long lines, the French on one side in glittering white and gold, the Americans in worn buff and blue on the other side. Washington and his staff were at the end, facing Rochambeau and his staff.

About one o'clock the British marched out, their colors cased, their bands playing a slow, mournful march. Necks craned to catch a glimpse of the famed Cornwallis riding at the column. But the officer in magnificent full dress was not the Earl but his chief of staff, General Charles O'Hara.

For the First few minutes, as the British went past, every man of them kept his eyes riveted on the French troops, as if trying to blot out those colonials on the other side of the road. Marquis de Lafayette, commanding the American light infantry, snapped an order, and a moment later the band exploded to "Yankee Doddle." As if on a string, every British head was jerked around by the sound and they stared, against their will, into the eyes of their ex-subjects.

O'Hara, maintaining the same attitude, tried to surrender to Rochambeau instead of Washington. But a French aide blocked him with his horse, the French general pointed across the road. When he explained that Cornwallis was "indisposed," Washington directed him to take orders from his second in command, General Benjamin Lincoln. He could play the protocol game, too.

Lincoln led the British to an open field surrounded by French hussars. There, rank after rank, many in tears, they laid down their arms. One British colonel actually bit his sword in impotent anguish. Then came 28 British captains to surrender their regimental colors. The Americans had detailed 28 sergeants to receive them. The British captains strenuously refused to surrender them to anyone but an officer. Finally Colonel Alexander Hamilton arranged for the youngest officer in the American army, an 18-year-old ensign named Wilson, to receive the flags one by one and hand them to the sergeants.

It was all over by three o'clock Washington had an aide draft a brief, totally undramatic victory report to the President of the Continental Congress. Another aide, Tench Tilghman, was given the honor of carrying it to Philadelphia. The story of his trip is the best possible illustration of the narrow margin between American victory and defeat.

When Tilghman arrived, he asked Congress for a draft of money to pay for the expenses of his trip. They could not do it. There was not one dollar in the national treasury. Finally, each Congressman contributed a dollar out of his own pocket.

Set for Holiday Galas

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The second act of the "fashion revolution" has begun. Our heroine (the modern woman) emerges now as one who has made up her mind. She knows which side she's on in the tug-of-war between the youth movement and the establishment.

The revolution in fashion which in the past year produced one abomination after another in the name of "design" did serve a purpose. It inspired new concepts, new silhouettes and it shook up the establishment.

From the staid couture of other seasons women want the liveliness of the new kookie clothes, but we want to look and feel beautiful, too. Today's woman doesn't want any more of the grotesqueries. But neither does she want fashions so understated that they fade into the background. She wants a new breed of couture—feminine, elegant, fresh and young.

He offers no fads, no gimmicks. The clothes are sophisticated by day, luxurious for late day—gay, lively but ladylike.

One new look for daytime is the "caged" skimmer in solid color wool jersey, topped with a checked tunic jacket in the new three-quarter length. Another, the doublet dress, is a long-sleeved gray wool skimmer worn under a loose-fitting doublet, not unlike a very fashionable sandwich board.

The look for evening is great for the coming holiday festivities. Cocktail dresses with square-cut or softly draped necklines bare the shoulders and little tents have fullness in the back, caught up in butterfly detailing. The soft fabrics add to the feminine, float-away illusion.

At holiday gatherings where the room will glitter with gimmicks and geegaws, soft simplicity will catch every eye.

Three Essex Youths Charged

DEXTER -- Three Essex youths, Kenneth Sitz, Bill Harris and Eugene Mason, all 19 were arrested Wednesday and were charged with shoplifting, according to City Marshal Pete Healy.

The youths had in their possession a sweater and a knife which reportedly came from Stovalls, a pipe and a razor from Myers Drug Store, a cigarette lighter from Hardys, socks from Schneiders Shoe Center and a bottle of cologne from Dexter Cut Rate Drugs.

Police were alerted of the trio by a merchant and they were arrested on Stoddard Street near Halls Grocery.

Healy said that the three had the sweater, pipe, razor and socks with them when they were picked up. They had discarded the lighter which was later recovered and the bottle of cologne was found shoved beneath the seat of the police car.

The three were turned over to the sheriff's office and appeared in magistrate court Thursday morning where Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee said that the five misdeameanor charges of stealing were filed against the three.

Their trial in magistrate court been set for Dec. 15. Sentencing of Harris and Sitz were deferred until Thursday, McGhee said.

The three are in the Stoddard County jail. Thursday they had not made bond which has been set at $500 on each charge, McGhee said.

$3,000 Raise For New Judge

DEXTER -- A raise in salary of $3,000 per year has been authorized for new Circuit Judge William Billings.

The plan was formulated by the county courts of Dunklin and Stoddard Counties. Under the state law, the judge's salary is set at $16,000, paid by the state, but the law permits the county courts, if they so desire and agree, to add to that salary.

The raise was approved by the Dunklin County Court and by two of the three members of the Stoddard County Court. Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Judge Leffler Lee voted for the increase in Stoddard County, but Judge Jack Ward voted in opposition to it.

Under the plan, each of the counties will contribute $1500 to the salary, thus bringing Judge Billings' salary from $16,000 to $19,000.

MINCE PIE

WHEN you eat a generous piece of homemade mince pie, do you know that you partaking of the "honor dish" usually served at holiday dinners?

Just when this dish was first used at Christmas feasts is not definitely known, but it came into prominence during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries when gay times were common on the continent of Europe and in England at Christmas time.

The "minced pie" was far different from our own mince pie. In those early times, it was from four to six inches thick and filled with the rarest of fruits, spices, and raisins. It was like a very rich sauce baked in a deep dish with a rather thick and very rich crust.

The host always engaged the services of a physician because people invariably would eat too much minced pie, and there were sure to be a dozen people groaning and rolling on the floor with indigestion.

In America, many of the early Christians did not have any Christmas festivities because of a peculiar religious belief that no celebration of the day should occur. The old Puritans went so far as to forbid eating minced pie, and people were actually fined for so doing.

Truck and Car Collide on Highway

A 1954 Chevrolet truck, driven by Freeman Pitman, 32, route one, Bertrand, attempted a left turn, when he was struck by a 1965 Dodge, driven by Jack Ezell, 34, Cape Girardeau.

No one was injured in the accident, on highway 62, two miles west of Charleston at 5:45 p.m. Friday. There was no arrests, the state patrol reported.

The French Admiral, de Grasse, had already threatened to sail away to keep a date with the Spanish in the West Indies. There was no time to waste. Washington's crisp reply decalred his "ardent desire to spare the further effusion of blood" but he gave Cornwallis exactly two hours to state what terms he hoped to get.

Cornwallis, every hopeful of seeing the British fleet on the horizon, complained morosely but complied. The British were down to their last 100 mortar shells. Over 2,000 men were sick or wounded. The rest were all but completely demoralized by eight days and nights of relentless bombardment.

Cornwallis's answer was unsatisfactory and Washington decided to state his terms. He and his aides spent most of the night working on a letter. Meanwhile, he generously ordered the allied cannon to cease fire, and the men in the trenches enjoyed their first night of peaceful sleep in over a week. It was interrupted on the British side by a ghastly accident.

The artillery commander ordered his cannoneers to spend the night filling mortar and howitzer shells with powder, in case the shooting began again the next day. The artillery-men stole some brandy and got thoroughly drunk before they went to the powder magazine. Someone was careless with a candle. The magazine and 13 soldiers suddenly went skyward in an enormous explosion.

At dawn, a strange sound came drifting out of the British lines --the bagpipers of the Scottish 76th Regiment were saluting their conquerors. Not to be outdone, the band of the French Royal Deux-Ponts Regiment replied. Slowly then, the sun rose on an astonishing scene. From one end of the British lines to the other, the parapets were crowded with men and officers, and on the Allied side the ramparts were eqaully full. Both armies simply stared at each other, and the torn silent battlefield, as if they were seeing it all for the first time.

Washington's terms were delivered that morning. He told Cornwallis his men would be "marched to such parts of the country as can. . .provide for their subsistence." Once more he gave him two hours to accept--or a "renewal of hostilities" would take place. By noon Cornwallis accepted, and appointed two aides to meet with two of Washington's aides to work out in final form the "articles of capitulation."

The delegates met at the Moore House, a simply white frame cottage, still standing at Yorktown. They spent the day haggling over details that were very important to soldiers in the 18th century. The British wanted ot march out with the "honors of war," which included the right to fly flags and salute the victors with some of their own music. Colonel John Laurens, the American negotiator, adamantly refused. Only a year before he had been part of the American army that surrendered to the British at the siege of Charlestown, South Carolina, and the British had refused them this privilege.

"But," said the British aide, "my Lord Cornwallis did not command at Charlestown."

Washington got the final terms around midnight, and had them written out in three copies by morning. Under each article, he calmly wrote his approval or rejection--and sent them into the British lines for Cornwallis to sign first. He then rode to Redoubt Number Ten, a stone's throw from the British lines, where he was joined by the French commander, the Count de Rochambeau, and one of the French admirals, Count de Barras. Other ranking officers crowded around. Finally, the papers arrived. Washington signed without a word. So did the French. Washington told an aide to place above the signatures: "Done in the trenches before Yorktown in Virginia, October 19, 1781."

Now only the formal ceremony remained. For this, the British even issued new uniforms to anyone who needed them. Just beyond the trenches the allied armies formed two long lines, the French on one side in glittering white and gold, the Americans in worn buff and blue on the other side. Washington and his staff were at the end, facing Rochambeau and his staff.

About one o'clock the British marched out, their colors cased, their bands playing a slow, mournful march. Necks craned to catch a glimpse of the famed Cornwallis riding at the column. But the officer in magnificent full dress was not the Earl but his chief of staff, General Charles O'Hara.

For the First few minutes, as the British went past, every man of them kept his eyes riveted on the French troops, as if trying to blot out those colonials on the other side of the road. Marquis de Lafayette, commanding the American light infantry, snapped an order, and a moment later the band exploded to "Yankee Doddle." As if on a string, every British head was jerked around by the sound and they stared, against their will, into the eyes of their ex-subjects.

O'Hara, maintaining the same attitude, tried to surrender to Rochambeau instead of Washington. But a French aide blocked him with his horse, the French general pointed across the road. When he explained that Cornwallis was "indisposed," Washington directed him to take orders from his second in command, General Benjamin Lincoln. He could play the protocol game, too.

Lincoln led the British to an open field surrounded by French hussars. There, rank after rank, many in tears, they laid down their arms. One British colonel actually bit his sword in impotent anguish. Then came 28 British captains to surrender their regimental colors. The Americans had detailed 28 sergeants to receive them. The British captains strenuously refused to surrender them to anyone but an officer. Finally Colonel Alexander Hamilton arranged for the youngest officer in the American army, an 18-year-old ensign named Wilson, to receive the flags one by one and hand them to the sergeants.

It was all over by three o'clock Washington had an aide draft a brief, totally undramatic victory report to the President of the Continental Congress. Another aide, Tench Tilghman, was given the honor of carrying it to Philadelphia. The story of his trip is the best possible illustration of the narrow margin between American victory and defeat.

When Tilghman arrived, he asked Congress for a draft of money to pay for the expenses of his trip. They could not do it. There was not one dollar in the national treasury. Finally, each Congressman contributed a dollar out of his own pocket.

Set for Holiday Galas

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The second act of the "fashion revolution" has begun. Our heroine (the modern woman) emerges now as one who has made up her mind. She knows which side she's on in the tug-of-war between the youth movement and the establishment.

The revolution in fashion which in the past year produced one abomination after another in the name of "design" did serve a purpose. It inspired new concepts, new silhouettes and it shook up the establishment.

From the staid couture of other seasons women want the liveliness of the new kookie clothes, but we want to look and feel beautiful, too. Today's woman doesn't want any more of the grotesqueries. But neither does she want fashions so understated that they fade into the background. She wants a new breed of couture—feminine, elegant, fresh and young.

He offers no fads, no gimmicks. The clothes are sophisticated by day, luxurious for late day—gay, lively but ladylike.

One new look for daytime is the "caged" skimmer in solid color wool jersey, topped with a checked tunic jacket in the new three-quarter length. Another, the doublet dress, is a long-sleeved gray wool skimmer worn under a loose-fitting doublet, not unlike a very fashionable sandwich board.

MAKING THE HOLIDAY circuit from cocktails on, the skimmer (left) is in a vanilla beige rayon blend with squared neck and cuffs banded in gold and tiny pearls. Theater suit (right) in a diamond-patterned brocade teams with a sleeveless, double-breasted skimmer and cardigan coat. These are by Umba of Donle, a division of Dorothy Hubbs.

The look for evening is great for the coming holiday festivities. Cocktail dresses with square-cut or softly draped necklines bare the shoulders and little tents have fullness in the back, caught up in butterfly detailing. The soft fabrics add to the feminine, float-away illusion.

At holiday gatherings where the room will glitter with gimmicks and geegaws, soft simplicity will catch every eye.

Three Essex Youths Charged

DEXTER -- Three Essex youths, Kenneth Sitz, Bill Harris and Eugene Mason, all 19 were arrested Wednesday and were charged with shoplifting, according to City Marshal Pete Healy.

The youths had in their possession a sweater and a knife which reportedly came from Stovalls, a pipe and a razor from Myers Drug Store, a cigarette lighter from Hardys, socks from Schneiders Shoe Center and a bottle of cologne from Dexter Cut Rate Drugs.

Police were alerted of the trio by a merchant and they were arrested on Stoddard Street near Halls Grocery.

Healy said that the three had the sweater, pipe, razor and socks with them when they were picked up. They had discarded the lighter which was later recovered and the bottle of cologne was found shoved beneath the seat of the police car.

The three were turned over to the sheriff's office and appeared in magistrate court Thursday morning where Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee said that the five misdeameanor charges of stealing were filed against the three.

McGhee said that Sitz pleaded guilty to three charges, Harris to one charge, but that Mason pleaded innocent to all charges. Mason is on probation, McGhee said.

Their trial in magistrate court been set for Dec. 15. Sentencing of Harris and Sitz were deferred until Thursday, McGhee said.

The three are in the Stoddard County jail. Thursday they had not made bond which has been set at $500 on each charge, McGhee said.

$3,000 Raise For New Judge

DEXTER -- A raise in salary of $3,000 per year has been authorized for new Circuit Judge William Billings.

The plan was formulated by the county courts of Dunklin and Stoddard Counties. Under the state law, the judge's salary is set at $16,000, paid by the state, but the law permits the county courts, if they so desire and agree, to add to that salary.

The raise was approved by the Dunklin County Court and by two of the three members of the Stoddard County Court. Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Judge Leffler Lee voted for the increase in Stoddard County, but Judge Jack Ward voted in opposition to it.

Under the plan, each of the counties will contribute $1500 to the salary, thus bringing Judge Billings' salary from $16,000 to $19,000.

MINCE PIE

WHEN you eat a generous piece of homemade mince pie, do you know that you partaking of the "honor dish" usually served at holiday dinners?

Just when this dish was first used at Christmas feasts is not definitely known, but it came into prominence during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries when gay times were common on the continent of Europe and in England at Christmas time.

The "minced pie" was far different from our own mince pie. In those early times, it was from four to six inches thick and filled with the rarest of fruits, spices, and raisins. It was like a very rich sauce baked in a deep dish with a rather thick and very rich crust.

The host always engaged the services of a physician because people invariably would eat too much minced pie, and there were sure to be a dozen people groaning and rolling on the floor with indigestion.

In America, many of the early Christians did not have any Christmas festivities because of a peculiar religious belief that no celebration of the day should occur. The old Puritans went so far as to forbid eating minced pie, and people were actually fined for so doing.

Britist Monarchy Shaken 30 Years Ago

LONDON AP - It was a gloomy, winter's day, Dec. 11, 1936.

Over the radio came the sad voice of King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor:

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king, as I would wish to do, without the help and support of the woman I love."

The woman was American-born, twice-divorced Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The crisis shook Britons and threatened to undermine the monarchy.

Now, 30 years later, the British monarchy still stands, with Edward's niece, Elizabeth, reigning as queen. The abdication is merely another page in England's long and often turbulent history and is almost forgotten.

The duke, 72, has called it Buckingham Palace since he abdicated-but always alone. His duchess, 70, has never been accepted in the royal circles.

The Windsors spend most of their time at their home just outside Paris. Their wanderings -to the United States, Italy, Spair, Austria and the south of France among the social set-have sometimes evoked pity among British friends.

But to the British of his and other generations the aging duke will always remain the boyish romantic figure-the king who gave up his throne for the woman he loved.

He was a popular king for that short reign of 327 days.

Ever since abdication a row has raged hot and cold-did he go willingly or was he pushed? The duke has said himself that abdication was the only course open to him.

"I think I could have found not only political support but much public support for my position had I wished to make a struggle," he told an interviewer last July.

"But if I had permitted the politicians or encouraged the public to stand with me as Churchill and Beaverbrook wanted, I would have been forming-don't you see?- a king's party, a political party to serve my own private interests.

"Had I done that, I would not have been a worthy king. So I decided, alone, to pay the price, which was clearly abdication. It was the only course which was at the same time right for me and right for Britain."

Winston Churchill, then in the political shadows, and Canadian -born Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the powerful Express group of newspapers, were the leaders of a save-the-king movement. Ranged against them was Conservative party Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and almost the entire British establishment, including the Church of England and Geoffrey Dawson, influential editor of the London Times.

News of the king's infatuation with Mrs. Simpson was prominently reported in American newspapers at the time.

But as the storm gathered, no mention of their relationship appeared in British newspapers. Then the Bishop of Bradford, in a talk to his diocesan conference on Dec. 1, 1936, let the cat out of the bag.

The Yorkshire Post, a provincial newspaper published in northern England, carried an editorial headed "The King and His People." The national newspapers took it up the next day and Baldwin felt he had to act.

The stern, pipe-smoking prime minister issued an ultimatum that the king, then 42, should give up his proposed marriage to Mrs. Simpson-who, as a divorcee, was not acceptable to the church-monarchy tradition -or quit the throne.

Some commentators say the king was threatened and bullied into going.

Tready Does Not Change Soviet Goals

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

What the Soviet Union says it is willing to do about outer space somehow fails to square with what Moscow repeatedly says it intends to do on earth.

Moscow has agreed on terms of a treaty barring mass destruction weapons from outer space, but Soviet propaganda pursues the theme of "liberation struggles," aimed at world domination by the "working class," by which the Communists mean themselves.

Even as the space agreement was being hammered out, Pravda, the Communist party paper, was carrying instructive articles for Communists, harking back to the "historic significance" of the 1957 and 1960 Moscow declarations.

Those two world Communist conferences laid down a blueprint for Communist expansion by use of the "liberation struggle" device.

Last week, Pravda's editorial noted that the Soviet line was aimed at "securing a peaceful international atmosphere."

This, it said, would increase "the opportunity for the victorious development of the class struggle by the proletariat and the struggle of oppressed peoples for their social and national liberation in any form including through wars of liberation."

If that is the real aim, then an agreement on the use of outer space has less meaning than elation from Washington might suggest. The Soviet line, as sketched by Pravda, implies that peaceful coexistence and lessened tension in the West are components of plans to quicken violent revolution.

Soviet statements, however, must also be examined against Moscow's current problems in the Red world. The expressed determination to pursue "liberation struggles" by all means, including wars, can be defensive, in the light of Red Chinese hostility to the Kremlin and the contest for influence within the Communist world itself.

Tready Does Not Change Soviet Goals

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

What the Soviet Union says it is willing to do about outer space somehow fails to square with what Moscow repeatedly says it intends to do on earth.

Moscow has agreed on terms of a treaty barring mass destruction weapons from outer space, but Soviet propaganda pursues the theme of "liberation struggles," aimed at world domination by the "working class," by which the Communists mean themselves.

Even as the space agreement was being hammered out, Pravda, the Communist party paper, was carrying instructive articles for Communists, harking back to the "historic significance" of the 1957 and 1960 Moscow declarations.

Those two world Communist conferences laid down a blueprint for Communist expansion by use of the "liberation struggle" device.

Last week, Pravda's editorial noted that the Soviet line was aimed at "securing a peaceful international atmosphere."

This, it said, would increase "the opportunity for the victorious development of the class struggle by the proletariat and the struggle of oppressed peoples for their social and national liberation in any form including through wars of liberation."

If that is the real aim, then an agreement on the use of outer space has less meaning than elation from Washington might suggest. The Soviet line, as sketched by Pravda, implies that peaceful coexistence and lessened tension in the West are components of plans to quicken violent revolution.

Soviet statements, however, must also be examined against Moscow's current problems in the Red world. The expressed determination to pursue "liberation struggles" by all means, including wars, can be defensive, in the light of Red Chinese hostility to the Kremlin and the contest for influence within the Communist world itself.

Britist Monarchy Shaken 30 Years Ago

LONDON AP - It was a gloomy, winter's day, Dec. 11, 1936.

Over the radio came the sad voice of King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor:

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king, as I would wish to do, without the help and support of the woman I love."

The woman was American-born, twice-divorced Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The crisis shook Britons and threatened to undermine the monarchy.

Now, 30 years later, the British monarchy still stands, with Edward's niece, Elizabeth, reigning as queen. The abdication is merely another page in England's long and often turbulent history and is almost forgotten.

The Windsors themselves-their exile ended-drop in and out of London virtually unnoticed, with no official recognition.

The duke, 72, has called it Buckingham Palace since he abdicated-but always alone. His duchess, 70, has never been accepted in the royal circles.

The Windsors spend most of their time at their home just outside Paris. Their wanderings -to the United States, Italy, Spair, Austria and the south of France among the social set-have sometimes evoked pity among British friends.

But to the British of his and other generations the aging duke will always remain the boyish romantic figure-the king who gave up his throne for the woman he loved.

He was a popular king for that short reign of 327 days.

Ever since abdication a row has raged hot and cold-did he go willingly or was he pushed? The duke has said himself that abdication was the only course open to him.

"I think I could have found not only political support but much public support for my position had I wished to make a struggle," he told an interviewer last July.

"But if I had permitted the politicians or encouraged the public to stand with me as Churchill and Beaverbrook wanted, I would have been forming-don't you see?- a king's party, a political party to serve my own private interests.

"Had I done that, I would not have been a worthy king. So I decided, alone, to pay the price, which was clearly abdication. It was the only course which was at the same time right for me and right for Britain."

Winston Churchill, then in the political shadows, and Canadian -born Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the powerful Express group of newspapers, were the leaders of a save-the-king movement. Ranged against them was Conservative party Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and almost the entire British establishment, including the Church of England and Geoffrey Dawson, influential editor of the London Times.

News of the king's infatuation with Mrs. Simpson was prominently reported in American newspapers at the time.

But as the storm gathered, no mention of their relationship appeared in British newspapers. Then the Bishop of Bradford, in a talk to his diocesan conference on Dec. 1, 1936, let the cat out of the bag.

The Yorkshire Post, a provincial newspaper published in northern England, carried an editorial headed "The King and His People." The national newspapers took it up the next day and Baldwin felt he had to act.

The stern, pipe-smoking prime minister issued an ultimatum that the king, then 42, should give up his proposed marriage to Mrs. Simpson-who, as a divorcee, was not acceptable to the church-monarchy tradition -or quit the throne.

Some commentators say the king was threatened and bullied into going.

Beaverbrook, however, once summed it up this way: "Who killed cock robin? Cock robin did."

Dear Santa

Dear Santa,
I am 14 years old, but I am very immature in mind. I have a hard time trying to think as the rest of the kids of my age do. For Christmas, I would like a mature mind to help me act grownup. I would also like to have the same luck. I had this year and get cheerleader next year (although I did a poor job at it) I also want a case of melba toast, a box of melba cigars, and a pack of Winstons (The last two help me feel grownup).
I also would like someone to go out on a date with me. He has to like immature minded girls though. Tell him to write me at the address below. Thank you very much Santa for helping me, I need it!
Love,
Little Miss Melba "Jo" Etienne
Box 303
Lilbourn, Mo.

Dear Santa
I would like a Baby Magic Doll, a Jane West Doll and House, Set of Dishes, and a Suzy Homemaker vacuum cleaner, and clothes for my dolls.
I will leave you a treat on the table by my tree.
Love
Tammy Rudd
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa,
My name is Jerry Dean Patterson Jr., I am 7 years old and in the second grade. My teachers name is Miss Williams. I go to school at Vanduser.
Would you please bring me an electric train, a block board on a stand, G I. Joe, a farming tool set, corn picker, bull-dozer and gun and holster set. Thank you.
Santa we will leave you something on the table.
Love,
Jerry Dean Patterson Jr.

Dear Santa,
My name is Tommy Patterson, I am 3 years old. I have been a fairly good boy this year.
Would you please bring me a farming tool set, piano, gun and holsters, wrecker, bulldozer, a stuffed Woody Woodpecker , and a record player for kids my age. Thank you.
Santa I will leave you something on the table.
Love,
Tommy Patterson

Dear Santa,
I'm a little girl 3 years old. I would like for you to bring me a doll buggy, a piano, doll, and a game. The Farmer Says, i have been a good girl this year. Also don't forget my mother and father.
Yours truly,
Stephanie Hagar

What was so great about Alexander?

In the 4th century B.C. in the northern Egyptian city bearing his name, Alexander of Macedon founded a storehouse for wisdom, art and skills from the past. It attracted scholars from the whole western world and while called a library, it was actually one of the world's first universities.
This contribution alone earns Alexander his title, "the Great."
Today, few of us can found a college, but most of us, through our gifts, can keep one going. This, too, is a great thing.
Give to the college of your choice.

Make It A Meaningful Gift

AS CHRISTMAS draws near, most of us are thinking of the gifts we want to buy for our loved ones.
Our list includes such things as a sweater for Grandma, a pair of gloves for Uncle Jim, a new jacket for Junior. These are useful—perhaps needed—items. Our list also includes a number of things that are not so useful—tokens of affection for family, friends, business associates.
Wouldn't it be nice to give more meaningful presents? And what could be more meaningful than a gift of U.S. Savings Bonds or Stamps?
In these critical times, we can help ourselves and our country by buying Bonds. And we can help back up our fighting men in Vietnam by these same purchases.

Dear Santa

Dear Santa,
I am 14 years old, but I am very immature in mind. I have a hard time trying to think as the rest of the kids of my age do. For Christmas, I would like a mature mind to help me act grownup. I would also like to have the same luck. I had this year and get cheerleader next year (although I did a poor job at it) I also want a case of melba toast, a box of melba cigars, and a pack of Winstons (The last two help me feel grownup).
I also would like someone to go out on a date with me. He has to like immature minded girls though. Tell him to write me at the address below. Thank you very much Santa for helping me, I need it!
Love,
Little Miss Melba "Jo" Etienne
Box 303
Lilbourn, Mo.

Dear Santa
I would like a Baby Magic Doll, a Jane West Doll and House, Set of Dishes, and a Suzy Homemaker vacuum cleaner, and clothes for my dolls.
I will leave you a treat on the table by my tree.
Love
Tammy Rudd
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa,
My name is Jerry Dean Patterson Jr., I am 7 years old and in the second grade. My teachers name is Miss Williams. I go to school at Vanduser.
Would you please bring me an electric train, a block board on a stand, G I. Joe, a farming tool set, corn picker, bull-dozer and gun and holster set. Thank you.
Santa we will leave you something on the table.
Love,
Jerry Dean Patterson Jr.

Dear Santa,
My name is Tommy Patterson, I am 3 years old. I have been a fairly good boy this year.
Would you please bring me a farming tool set, piano, gun and holsters, wrecker, bulldozer, a stuffed Woody Woodpecker , and a record player for kids my age. Thank you.
Santa I will leave you something on the table.
Love,
Tommy Patterson

Dear Santa,
I'm a little girl 3 years old. I would like for you to bring me a doll buggy, a piano, doll, and a game. The Farmer Says, i have been a good girl this year. Also don't forget my mother and father.
Yours truly,
Stephanie Hagar

Hi Ya Santa,
We are verry good little boys and girls from Morehouse high school. We are considered the Jolly Juniors.
For Christmas we would like the following:
1. Sandy would like a certain boy's ring very much.
2. Faye would like to meet G. V. from Sikeston again before Christmas. She would also like for Charlie to stop pestering her in English.
3. Brenda would like to have a round trip ticket to Germany to visit Jimmy.
4. Donna would like a receive a phone call from Steve S. She has a new number.
5. Ellen would like for her brother Raymond to trust her with his new car.
6. Linda would like a certain boy's ring.
7. Lynn would like to divorce Steve so he'll call Donna.
8. Pat would like for Dave to be sitting under her Christmas tree with a great big red bow around his neck.
9. Jimmy wants a new car.
10. Wayne wants a new car.
11. Clint wants a beautiful dame.
12. Keith wants a 1967 "Camaro".
13. Charlie would like a wife who knows how to play basketball and a trophy in the Cape tournament.
14. Paul would like a newer and faster motorcycle, newer and faster car, and a faster girl.
15. Kenny wants a GTO and 10 kisses from Linda. He also would like $25.00.
16. Frankie is absent so we don't know what he wants.
That's all the Jolly Juniors. We've really been very good little boys and girls, so please bring us what we ask for.
Your Admirers
The Jolly Juniors

Dear Santa Baby,
I am a sweet little girl just seventy-three years old. I don't demand to much from you cats at the North Pole. I just need a new set of tires for my G. T. and a carborator for the Stingray. . I also wish that you'd bring me a surfboard (my old ones cracked, I hit the dock) and a battery powered tricycle to cut across town on. I need some new go-go boots and a few more mini skirts. I guess that's all for now if there's more I let you know.
Squeezins and Snoockino,

What was so great about Alexander?

In the 4th century B.C. in the northern Egyptian city bearing his name, Alexander of Macedon founded a storehouse for wisdom, art and skills from the past. It attracted scholars from the whole western world and while called a library, it was actually one of the world's first universities.
This contribution alone earns Alexander his title, "the Great."
Today, few of us can found a college, but most of us, through our gifts, can keep one going. This, too, is a great thing.

Make It A Meaningful Gift

AS CHRISTMAS draws near, most of us are thinking of the gifts we want to buy for our loved ones.
Our list includes such things as a sweater for Grandma, a pair of gloves for Uncle Jim, a new jacket for Junior. These are useful—perhaps needed—items. Our list also includes a number of things that are not so useful—tokens of affection for family, friends, business associates.
Wouldn't it be nice to give more meaningful presents? And what could be more meaningful than a gift of U.S. Savings Bonds or Stamps?
In these critical times, we can help ourselves and our country by buying Bonds. And we can help back up our fighting men in Vietnam by these same purchases.
A gift of Savings Bonds or Stamps is a gift that will be remembered. And it is a gift that keeps on giving.

EARN MONEY and LEARN A TRADE

IT'S AS EASY AS 1-2-3

HERE'S WHAT YOU EARN AT MCDONNELL

$66 a week for the first 4 weeks, while learning in class.
$74 a week for the next 7 weeks,
while learning on the production line.
$82 a week for the next 6 weeks,
while working on the production line.
$104.80 a week,
followed by automatic increases within grade.
That's $38.80 a week pay increase in just 4 months.

HERE'S WHAT YOU LEARN AT MCDONNELL

Trainee classes start every week for those who want a secure future. You'll learn such skills as blueprint reading, how to use planning sheets, how to read and use wiring diagrams, how to use various tools and measuring instruments, and how to read and use engineering specifications. Once you learn these skills, you'll help to build the Phantom II aircraft or work on some other interesting project of the future.

Contact your local State Employment Office.

Or come to the McDonnell Factory Employment Office, 11221 Natural Bridge Road, St. Louis, west of the airport, between 8:30 and 3:00, Monday through Saturday.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Readers: Recently I printed a letter from an engaged girl who is making plans for her wedding. Her fiance, she said, has a beautiful voice and wants to sing a solo at their wedding. She asked if it would be proper. I told the girl that the groom is on hand to be married and not to entertain the guests, and in my opinion they had better get someone else to sing.

Here is a sample of this week's mail:

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter has been crying all day on account of you. Just last month we gave her a lovely wedding and everyone said it was perfect down to the last detail. When Monica came down the aisle on her father's arm, her husband-to-be walked toward her singing "I Love You Truly." This added such a romantic touch to the ceremony that later we received several letters about it from the guests. Now, we see in your column that you feel it is in poor taste. Who appointed you judge and jury of the whole world? - SHORT HILLS, N.J.

Dear Know-It-All Ann Landers: When my husband and I were married 18 years ago, he took my arm from my father who had walked me down the aisle, we both faced the guests in the church and he sang "Because." This was not planned, in fact it was a surprise to me and I was thrilled. When our daughter is married, I hope her husband does the same thing. A spontaneous song from the groom is much more meaningful than a professional singer who gets paid. ---BURLINGTON, VT.

Dear Ann Landers: You are so arrogant you make me sick. Why do you feel that your way is the only right way? I refer to your statement that it is in poor taste for a groom to sing at his own wedding.

Our son married a lovely girl who had been married previously and was divorced. When the bride and groom met at the altar, she turned to him and sang, "The Second Time Around." She is not a professional singer, Ann: in fact her voice is just fair, but everyone was so moved by her singing that song it was the talk of the town for weeks. I think you owe our family an apology. --- BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Dear Ann Landers: I was very disappointed when you said it was in poor taste for the groom to sing at his own wedding. My fiance and I are going to be married in April and we have been rehearsing a duet. We had planned to sing "Each For The Other." At first Elwood was not very keen on the idea but my mother and I talked him into it. Now, after what you said in your column, Elwood is getting balky again and if he refuses to sing it will be your fault. I wish you would mind your own business. ---HUTCHINSON, KANS.

Dear Ann: Our son is a fine organist. Eugene has played the organ at dozens of weddings, including his own. The ceremony was beautiful, and our son's exquisite music provided a fitting background. When the clergyman came to the portion of the service where Eugene's presence was required he got up from the organ and all the guests applauded. Then he and his bride were married. Everyone said it was the most unusual wedding they had ever attended. ---GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA

Dear Readers: Well, we have just heard from New Jersey, Vermont, Alabama and California ---a good cross section of the country. It seems the people have been performing at their own weddings for quite some time and from the tone of the mail, they are going to continue to do so.

If it gives the bride and groom a feeling of satisfaction and they are not concerned about the theatrical aspects, who am I to crab the act?

Job Pays Well But Takers Few

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobs that pay up to $150 a day plus expenses are going begging, and federal officials are worried about it.

But don't hasten to apply for the job of labor arbitrator unless you have wisdom, patience, and a working knowledge of economics, the law industrial technology, psychology and labor-management relations.

Plus plenty of "just plain common sense," adds Morris L. Myers, general counsel of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Labor arbitrators, the court of last resort in more than 90 per cent of all collective bargaining contracts, get involved in everything from refereeing a grievance over a fist fight to a delicate contract interpretation involving hundreds of thousands of dollars.

And they have to try to keep both union and company officials happy while doing it.

While organized labor bitterly opposes compulsory arbitration laws to settle contract negotiation disputes, most unions warmly embrace arbitration as a means of settling grievances once a contract is signed.

The latter is called "voluntary arbitration," meaning "you agree to be bound by the arbitrator's ruling."

The arbitrator's word is law in settling a grievance. The government's only role is suggesting arbitrators upon equest.

Although arbitrators are not federal employes, Myers keeps a roster of 1,000 experienced men around the country and the American Arbitration Association—a private group—lists another 2,000.

But even the best of qualifications doesn't guarantee an arbitrator a job. "The most difficult thing is to get both sides to agree on the man they want," Myers said.

Myers sends names of arbitrators, along with biographical sketches, to both sides in a dispute. Picking the man for the job sometimes takes on the aspects of selecting a jury for a trial, with each side entitled to remove names of individuals unacceptable to them. Sometimes a whole new panel has to be sent out.

The union and the company split the cost of the arbitrators' services, which averaged $472 per case in fees and expenses for an average three days work.

Few of the arbitrators work at it full time. Many are college professors, but prior practical labor - management experience is almost essential.

Higher Tuition Fees Opposed

WASHINGTON - College Students and their parents were cautioned this week not to become unwitting supporters of a proposal that would lead to higher tuition fees across the country.

The warning came from the joint meeting of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the Association of State Colleges and Universities.

In reaffirming their opposition to proposed federal income tax credit for educational expenses, the associations urged the 90th congress and citizens not to be deceived by the seeming attractiveness of the proposal.

The only way colleges could benefit from tax credits would be by hiking tuition, the associations noted, and this in turn would increase--not reduce--the burden of college costs that many families now bear.

Legislation to authorize the tax credits has been introduced at every session of Congress over the past several years, although it has yet to win majority support. In its most frequently cited form, the proposal would allow taxpayers to deduct up to $325 from their annual tax.

Proponents of the measure have sought to emphasize the financial relief it appears to imply for parents of college students. But the 300 publicly-supported institutions represented at this week's meeting remain convinced that "tax credits would offer the most help to those who need it the least --while giving the least help, or none at all, to those who need it the most."

The associations noted, for example, that relatively high-income families paying tuition of $1500 or more a year could deduct as much as $325 from their tax bills, while low-income families paying little or no federal taxes would receive no benefits at all under the plan.

These poorer families would be all-the-more hard-pressed to meet consequently higher college expenses, the associations declared.

At the same time, they continued, the tax-credit idea has been advanced by some of its advocates as a simple method of bringing federal aid to the colleges without government stipulations on how the money should be spent.

The associations view this as a direct contradiction of the claim that tax credits would provide citizens with financial relief. NASULGC and ASCU maintain that the credits could not simultaneously aid both the college and the taxpayer.

Pointing out that the tax-credit approach would cost the U.S. Treasury at least 1 billion dollars in lost revenue during the first year alone, the associations warn that its adoption would likely preclude other forms of sorely-needed government aid to colleges for the foreseeable future. Knowing this, college trustees would be unable to avoid imposing higher tuition fees as a primary source of additional funds.

The associations also point to these objections:

Supporters of the tax-credit plan have concluded that it would by-pass Constitutional provision against using public funds for discriminatory purposes. By raising tuition, all colleges and universities--whether they adhered to non-discriminatory policies or not--could receive the indirect government assistance that tax credits would provide.

The money lost to the federal government through tax credits for college expenses would probably have to be recouped--no doubt through additional taxation.

The associations feel there are a number of affirmative ways by which federal funds, state tax dollars and private support can be used to halt the rising cost of higher education to the individual.

Increased support of existing national programs and new programs of institutional support offer sounder ways of providing assistance than tax credit. They feel, through the wise use of the billion dollars that tax credit legislation would cost the Treasury each year, "many dramatic and worthwhile accomplishments could be achieved for public and private higher education," a spokesman for the associations noted.

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Speaking to the 22nd Communist Congress at Moscow, October, 1961, Khrushchev made it official that, "anti-communists must be wiped out wherever they are found throughout the world." People will be surprised, upon inquiring, when they find out who became Khrushchev's most active messengers. Patriots who are being defamed fail to raise the question to their detractors, "How will you benefit if the Republic is destroyed?" The best informed people in our nation are happy to pursue Khrushchev's line even though he has been toppled. Commentators, columnists, news and editorial writers delight that it is open season on patriots to ridicule, cheapen, defame and make them appear as bad as possible.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Readers: Recently I printed a letter from an engaged girl who is making plans for her wedding. Her fiance, she said, has a beautiful voice and wants to sing a solo at their wedding. She asked if it would be proper. I told the girl that the groom is on hand to be married and not to entertain the guests, and in my opinion they had better get someone else to sing.

Here is a sample of this week's mail:

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter has been crying all day on account of you. Just last month we gave her a lovely wedding and everyone said it was perfect down to the last detail. When Monica came down the aisle on her father's arm, her husband-to-be walked toward her singing "I Love You Truly." This added such a romantic touch to the ceremony that later we received several letters about it from the guests. Now, we see in your column that you feel it is in poor taste. Who appointed you judge and jury of the whole world? - SHORT HILLS, N.J.

Dear Know-It-All Ann Landers: When my husband and I were married 18 years ago, he took my arm from my father who had walked me down the aisle, we both faced the guests in the church and he sang "Because." This was not planned, in fact it was a surprise to me and I was thrilled. When our daughter is married, I hope her husband does the same thing. A spontaneous song from the groom is much more meaningful than a professional singer who gets paid. ---BURLINGTON, VT.

Dear Ann Landers: You are so arrogant you make me sick. Why do you feel that your way is the only right way? I refer to your statement that it is in poor taste for a groom to sing at his own wedding.

Our son married a lovely girl who had been married previously and was divorced. When the bride and groom met at the altar, she turned to him and sang, "The Second Time Around." She is not a professional singer, Ann; in fact her voice is just fair, but everyone was so moved by her singing that song it was the talk of the town for weeks. I think you owe our family an apology. --- BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Dear Ann Landers: I was very disappointed when you said it was in poor taste for the groom to sing at his own wedding. My fiance and I are going to be married in April and we have been rehearsing a duet. We had planned to sing "Each For The Other." At first Elwood was not very keen on the idea but my mother and I talked him into it. Now, after what you said in your column, Elwood is getting balky again and if he refuses to sing it will be your fault. I wish you would mind your own business. ---HUTCHINSON, KANS.

Dear Ann: Our son is a fine organist. Eugene has played the organ at dozens of weddings, including his own. The ceremony was beautiful, and our son's exquisite music provided a fitting background. When the clergyman came to the portion of the service where Eugene's presence was required he got up from the organ and all the guests applauded. Then he and his bride were married. Everyone said it was the most unusual wedding they had ever attended. ---GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA

Dear Readers: Well, we have just heard from New Jersey, Vermont, Alabama and California ---a good cross section of the country. It seems the people have been performing at their own weddings for quite some time and from the tone of the mail, they are going to continue to do so.

If it gives the bride and groom a feeling of satisfaction and they are not concerned about the theatrical aspects, who am I to crab the act?

Job Pays Well But Takers Few

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobs that pay up to $150 a day plus expenses are going begging, and federal officials are worried about it.

But don't hasten to apply for the job of labor arbitrator unless you have wisdom, patience, and a working knowledge of economics, the law industrial technology, psychology and labor-management relations.

Plus plenty of "just plain common sense," adds Morris L. Myers, general counsel of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Labor arbitrators, the court of last resort in more than 90 per cent of all collective bargaining contracts, get involved in everything from refereeing a grievance over a fist fight to a delicate contract interpretation involving hundreds of thousands of dollars.

And they have to try to keep both union and company officials happy while doing it.

While organized labor bitterly opposes compulsory arbitration laws to settle contract negotiation disputes, most unions warmly embrace arbitration as a means of settling grievances once a contract is signed.

The latter is called "voluntary arbitration," meaning "you agree to be bound by the arbitrator's ruling."

The arbitrator's word is law in settling a grievance. The government's only role is suggesting arbitrators upon equest.

Although arbitrators are not federal employes, Myers keeps a roster of 1,000 experienced men around the country and the American Arbitration Association—a private group—lists another 2,000.

But even the best of qualifications doesn't guarantee an arbitrator a job. "The most difficult thing is to get both sides to agree on the man they want," Myers said.

Myers sends names of arbitrators, along with biographical sketches, to both sides in a dispute. Picking the man for the job sometimes takes on the aspects of selecting a jury for a trial, with each side entitled to remove names of individuals unacceptable to them. Sometimes a whole new panel has to be sent out.

The union and the company split the cost of the arbitrators' services, which averaged $472 per case in fees and expenses for an average three days work.

Few of the arbitrators work at it full time. Many are college professors, but prior practical labor - management experience is almost essential.

Higher Tuition Fees Opposed

WASHINGTON - College Students and their parents were cautioned this week not to become unwitting supporters of a proposal that would lead to higher tuition fees across the country.

The warning came from the joint meeting of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the Association of State Colleges and Universities.

In reaffirming their opposition to proposed federal income tax credit for educational expenses, the associations urged the 90th congress and citizens not to be deceived by the seeming attractiveness of the proposal.

The only way colleges could benefit from tax credits would be by hiking tuition, the associations noted, and this in turn would increase--not reduce--the burden of college costs that many families now bear.

Legislation to authorize the tax credits has been introduced at every session of Congress over the past several years, although it has yet to win majority support. In its most frequently cited form, the proposal would allow taxpayers to deduct up to $325 from their annual tax.

Proponents of the measure have sought to emphasize the financial relief it appears to imply for parents of college students. But the 300 publicly-supported institutions represented at this week's meeting remain convinced that "tax credits would offer the most help to those who need it the least --while giving the least help, or none at all, to those who need it the most."

The associations noted, for example, that relatively high-income families paying tuition of $1500 or more a year could deduct as much as $325 from their tax bills, while low-income families paying little or no federal taxes would receive no benefits at all under the plan.

These poorer families would be all-the-more hard-pressed to meet consequently higher college expenses, the associations declared.

At the same time, they continued, the tax-credit idea has been advanced by some of its advocates as a simple method of bringing federal aid to the colleges without government stipulations on how the money should be spent.

The associations view this as a direct contradiction of the claim that tax credits would provide citizens with financial relief. NASULGC and ASCU maintain that the credits could not simultaneously aid both the college and the taxpayer.

Pointing out that the tax-credit approach would cost the U.S. Treasury at least 1 billion dollars in lost revenue during the first year alone, the associations warn that its adoption would likely preclude other forms of sorely-needed government aid to colleges for the foreseeable future. Knowing this, college trustees would be unable to avoid imposing higher tuition fees as a primary source of additional funds.

And higher tuition would, at the least, off-set the "advantages" many families might realize from tax credits.

The associations also point to these objections:

Supporters of the tax-credit plan have concluded that it would by-pass Constitutional provision against using public funds for discriminatory purposes. By raising tuition, all colleges and universities--whether they adhered to non-discriminatory policies or not--could receive the indirect government assistance that tax credits would provide.

The money lost to the federal government through tax credits for college expenses would probably have to be recouped--no doubt through additional taxation.

The associations feel there are a number of affirmative ways by which federal funds, state tax dollars and private support can be used to halt the rising cost of higher education to the individual.

Increased support of existing national programs and new programs of institutional support offer sounder ways of providing assistance than tax credit. They feel, through the wise use of the billion dollars that tax credit legislation would cost the Treasury each year, "many dramatic and worthwhile accomplishments could be achieved for public and private higher education," a spokesman for the associations noted.

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Speaking to the 22nd Communist Congress at Moscow, October, 1961, Khrushchev made it official that, "anti-communists must be wiped out wherever they are found throughout the world." People will be surprised, upon inquiring, when they find out who became Khrushchev's most active messengers. Patriots who are being defamed fail to raise the question to their detractors, "How will you benefit if the Republic is destroyed?" The best informed people in our nation are happy to pursue Khrushchev's line even though he has been toppled. Commentators, columnists, news and editorial writers delight that it is open season on patriots to ridicule, cheapen, defame and make them appear as bad as possible.

Constructively,

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of 1966. There are 19 days left in the year

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1894, a law was passed permitting the government to collect taxes on income of more than $4,000 annually. The Supreme Court declared the income tax unconstitutional the following year.

On this date:

In 1787, Pennsylvania became the second state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1870, the first Negro member of the House of Representatives, Joseph Rainey of South Carolina was sworn in.

Ten years ago — The U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to recommend Japan for admission to the world organization as the U.N.'s 80th member. However, the council refused to recommend Outer Mongolia, a Soviet candidate for membership.

Five years ago — The Soviet Union demanded the United States arrest and turn over to it West German Gen Adolf Heusinger, chairman of the NATO military committee in Washington. The Russians said they wanted to try the general as a war criminal. Heusinger was the German army's chief of operations during World War II. The United States rejected the Soviet charges.

One year ago — A malfunction in a Titan 2 rocket thwarted the launching from Cape Kennedy of the Gemini 6 spacecraft with two men aboard.

because of the use of Edward Grady Partin, a Baton Rouge Teamsters local official, as what Hoffa called a government informer.

Hoffa's attorney, Joseph A. Fanelli, said Partin was placed in Hoffa's hotel suite in Nashville to gather information for the government

However, Stewart said "Partin did not enter the suite by force or by stealth. He was not a surreptitious eavesdropper."

Stewart said the Louisiana Teamster was in the hotel room by invitation and every conversation he heard was either directed to him or knowingly carried on in his presence.

"Neither this court nor any member of it has ever expressed the view that the Fourth Amendment protects a wrongdoer's misplaced belief that a person to whom he voluntarily confides his wrongdoings will not reveal it," Stewart said.

And so, Stewart said, "we hold that no right protected by the Fourth Amendment was violated in the present case."

Stewart also quoted Federal Judge Learned Hand, a recognized constitutional authority, to this effect:

"Courts have countenanced the use of informers from time immemorial; in cases of conspiracy or in other cases when the crime consists of preparing for another crime, it is usually necessary to rely upon them or upon accomplices because the criminals will almost certainly proceed covertly. . . ."

After dismissing Hoffa's several consitutional arguments, Stewart concluded his opinion affirming the labor leader's conviction by saying: "The Constitution does not require us to upset the jury's verdict."

While today's decision was firmly against Hoffa, it does not necessarily mean he goes immediately to prison. Still open to him are an application for reconsideration by the high court, and possibly other legal moves.

Veteran Found Dead In Home

George W. Ponder, 72, 109 North Handy, where he lived alone, was found dead in his home Sunday at 10:30 a.m. Coroner Clyde Poe estimated the man had died last Monday or Tuesday of natural causes. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Beulah Ponder, Ft. Smith, Ark.; one son, Freddie Ponder, Ft. Smith; three daughters, Misses Betty Sue Ponder and Tessie Ponder, both of Ft. Smith, Ark., and Janie Ponder, Paris, France.

Services will be Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the Jackson Funeral Chapel.

Burial will be in the Garden of Memories cemetery.

DECISION

Maddox 448,598 and former Gov. Ellis Arnall 57,832. Arnall was a write - in candidate.

The vote for Arnall, about 6 per cent of the number cast, prevented an election by majority.

Black said it is Georgia's duty under its constitution "to proceed to have the General Assembly elect its governor from the two highest candidates in the election."

That is, Black went on, "unless, as some of the parties contend, the entire legislative body is incapable of performing its responsibility of electing a governor because it is malapportioned." However, Black hastened to add, "this is not correct."

He said under an earlier Supreme Court ruling the Georgia Assembly is permitted to continue to function as presently apportioned until May 1, 1968.

"Consequently the Georgia Assembly is not disqualified to elect a governor as required by Article V of the state's constitution."

Armed Forces

Charleston and Cape Artists to Show Work

ST. LOUIS -- Artist Mary Frazier, Charleston, and sculptor James L. Garner, Cape Girardeau, will have a two-person art show at the Harmon Galleries, 31 N. Meramec, Clayton, Friday through Jan. 12, and at 9983 Manchester Road, St. Louis, Jan. 13 through Feb. 2.

A reception will be held Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Clayton Gallery.

Mrs. Frazier, a member of the St. Louis Artist Guild art section has been exhibiting professionally since 1962. Her shows this year were Poplar Bluff Bank, annual Southeast Missourian, Harmon Galleries Stable Group, annual Sikeston, St. Louis Artist Guild Art Section Exhibit, Mid-South, Memphis, Jackson annual exhibit, Christian Arts Festival, Creative Artist Build, Gallery, Cape Girardeau Guild, Gallery, annual exhibit. She is a member of the artists registry, Brooks Memorial Art Gallery in Memphis.

The Mid-South Show at the Brooks Gallery in Memphis is a jury show. The jury chooses 250 pieces of art work from approximately 1,000 pieces submitted by artists over a seven-state area.

Mrs. Frazier had one painting selected in 1965 and two in 1966.

A graduate of Central Methodist College, Fayette, Mrs. Frazier also studied painting under Jake Wells of Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Media for her new show will be polymer, polymer and paper, and watercolors. She describes her paintings as "generally expressionistic."

Garner attended Southeast Missouri State College, but his techniques in which he combines natural forms with industrial geometric designs, are largely self-taught. He will have about 30 pieces of modern sculpture in the show, constructed from wood, metal and plastics. His work is done in his home studio using an oxygen-acetylene torch.

Garner, who designs advertising graphics, product designs and illustrations commercially, has been showing professionally two years.

He has shown in Cape Girardeau, Detroit, and the St. Louis area. His last show, with artist M. Charles Rinehart, Ste. Genevieve, closed Nov. 12 at the Richard Long Gallery in Kirkwood.

This will be the second show in which the work of the two artists has been displayed together. Their first was at the college in Cape Girardeau earlier in the year.

LADY OLAVE Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the Boy Scout movement, tells of their shipboard romance. "It was in 1910," she says, "that Lord Baden-Powell had seen me walking in a London park. He'd never seen my face. He never looked at women--he was too busy with his work. It was my walk he looked at that day as I exercised my spaniel. He was writing a book on tracking for Boy Scouts, and he had a theory that a person's character was reflected in his walk.

"Two years later we met face to face, when Lord Baden-Powell saw me on board ship. He said to himself, 'I've seen that walk before!' After we had been properly introduced, he asked, 'Do you live in London? Don't you have a spaniel?' By the time the ship docked, we were engaged."

When you love your work, it shows.

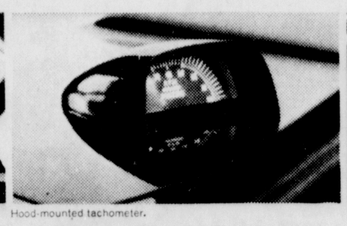
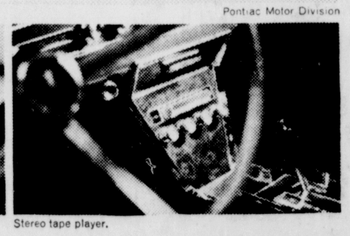
Grand Prix's monogrammed window.



Hood-mounted tachometer.



Stereo tape player.

And we love our work. So much so that we couldn't bear to stop with the slickest-looking split grille ever to grace a Wide-Track. (Or any other car, for that matter.)

We went ahead and made the windshield wipers disappear. The car not only looks cleaner, but the wipers are less subject to icing and freezing, too.

Then we got rid of the vent windows on all Grand Prix hardtops. We replaced them with nifty monograms and a flow-through ventilation system.

We even designed a rather unique hood-mounted tachometer option that's available on all Pontiacs. As are our other-bright new options like our eight-track stereo tape player and AM-FM Stereo-Multiplex radio. And, of course, our handsome interiors have to be seen to be believed. All Pontiacs have standard safety features that include a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, outside rearview mirror, and GM's energy absorbing steering column.

Isn't it time you decided to see your Pontiac dealer? If you love our work the way we do, it's the least you can do.

because of the use of Edward Grady Partin, a Baton Rouge Teamsters local official, as what Hoffa called a government informer.

Hoffa's attorney, Joseph A. Fanelli, said Partin was placed in Hoffa's hotel suite in Nashville to gather information for the government

However, Stewart said "Partin did not enter the suite by force or by stealth. He was not a surreptitious eavesdropper."

Stewart said the Louisiana Teamster was in the hotel room by invitation and every conversation he heard was either directed to him or knowingly carried on in his presence.

"Neither this court nor any member of it has ever expressed the view that the Fourth Amendment protects a wrongdoer's misplaced belief that a person to whom he voluntarily confides his wrongdoings will not reveal it," Stewart said.

And so, Stewart said, "we hold that no right protected by the Fourth Amendment was violated in the present case."

"Courts have countenanced the use of informers from time immemorial; in cases of conspiracy or in other cases when the crime consists of preparing for another crime, it is usually necessary to rely upon them or upon accomplices because the criminals will almost certainly proceed covertly. . . ."

After dismissing Hoffa's several consitutional arguments, Stewart concluded his opinion affirming the labor leader's conviction by saying: "The Constitution does not require us to upset the jury's verdict."

While today's decision was firmly against Hoffa, it does not necessarily mean he goes immediately to prison. Still open to him are an application for reconsideration by the high court, and possibly other legal moves.

DECISION

Maddox 448,598 and former Gov. Ellis Arnall 57,832. Arnall was a write - in candidate.

The vote for Arnall, about 6 per cent of the number cast, prevented an election by majority.

Black said it is Georgia's duty under its constitution "to proceed to have the General Assembly elect its governor from the two highest candidates in the election."

That is, Black went on, "unless, as some of the parties contend, the entire legislative body is incapable of performing its responsibility of electing a governor because it is malapportioned." However, Black hastened to add, "this is not correct."

He said under an earlier Supreme Court ruling the Georgia Assembly is permitted to continue to function as presently apportioned until May 1, 1968.

"Consequently the Georgia Assembly is not disqualified to elect a governor as required by Article V of the state's constitution."

Armed Forces

Charleston and Cape Artists to Show Work

ST. LOUIS -- Artist Mary Frazier, Charleston, and sculptor James L. Garner, Cape Girardeau, will have a two-person art show at the Harmon Galleries, 31 N. Meramec, Clayton, Friday through Jan. 12, and at 9983 Manchester Road, St. Louis, Jan. 13 through Feb. 2.

A reception will be held Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Clayton Gallery.

Mrs. Frazier, a member of the St. Louis Artist Guild art section has been exhibiting professionally since 1962. Her shows this year were Poplar Bluff Bank, annual Southeast Missourian, Harmon Galleries Stable Group, annual Sikeston, St. Louis Artist Guild Art Section Exhibit, Mid-South, Memphis, Jackson annual exhibit, Christian Arts Festival, Creative Artist Build, Gallery, Cape Girardeau Guild, Gallery, annual exhibit. She is a member of the artists registry, Brooks Memorial Art Gallery in Memphis.

The Mid-South Show at the Brooks Gallery in Memphis is a jury show. The jury chooses 250 pieces of art work from approximately 1,000 pieces submitted by artists over a seven-state area.

Mrs. Frazier had one painting selected in 1965 and two in 1966.

A graduate of Central Methodist College, Fayette, Mrs. Frazier also studied painting under Jake Wells of Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Media for her new show will be polymer, polymer and paper, and watercolors. She describes her paintings as "generally expressionistic."

Garner attended Southeast Missouri State College, but his techniques in which he combines natural forms with industrial geometric designs, are largely self-taught. He will have about 30 pieces of modern sculpture in the show, constructed from wood, metal and plastics. His work is done in his home studio using an oxygen-acetylene torch.

He has shown in Cape Girardeau, Detroit, and the St. Louis area. His last show, with artist M. Charles Rhinehart, Ste. Genevieve, closed Nov. 12 at the Richard Long Gallery in Kirkwood.

This will be the second show in which the work of the two artists has been displayed together. Their first was at the college in Cape Girardeau earlier in the year.

LADY OLAVE Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the Boy Scout movement, tells of their shipboard romance. "It was in 1910," she says, "that Lord Baden-Powell had seen me walking in a London park. He'd never seen my face. He never looked at women--he was too busy with his work. It was my walk he looked at that day as I exercised my spaniel. He was writing a book on tracking for Boy Scouts, and he had a theory that a person's character was reflected in his walk.

"Two years later we met face to face, when Lord Baden-Powell saw me on board ship. He said to himself, 'I've seen that walk before!' After we had been properly introduced, he asked, 'Do you live in London? Don't you have a spaniel?' By the time the ship docked, we were engaged."

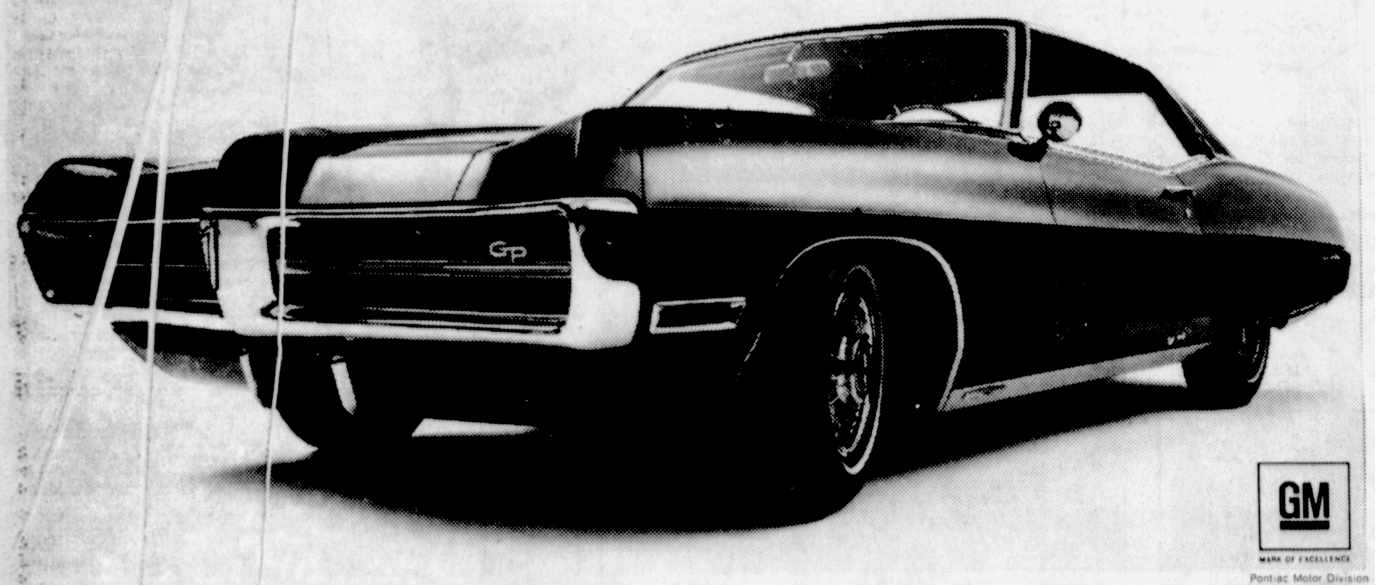
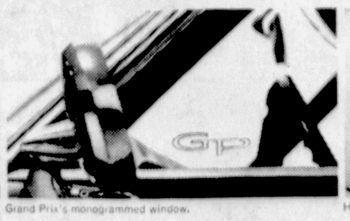
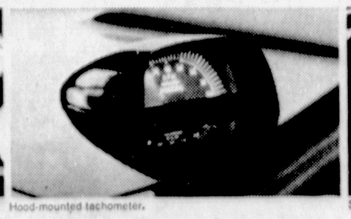
When you love your work, it shows.



What happened to the windshield wipers?



Grand Prix's monogrammed window.



Hood-mounted tachometer.

Stereo tape player.

And we love our work. So much so that we couldn't bear to stop with the slickest-looking split grille ever to grace a Wide-Track. (Or any other car, for that matter.)

We went ahead and made the windshield wipers disappear. The car not only looks cleaner, but the wipers are less subject to icing and freezing, too.

Then we got rid of the vent windows on all Grand Prix hardtops. We replaced them with nifty monograms and a flow-through ventilation system.

We even designed a rather unique hood-mounted tachometer option that's available on all Pontiacs. As are our other bright new options like our eight-track stereo tape player and AM-FM Stereo-Multiplex radio. And, of course, our handsome interiors have to be seen to be believed. All Pontiacs have standard safety features that include a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, outside rearview mirror, and GM's energy absorbing steering column.

Isn't it time you decided to see your Pontiac dealer? If you love our work the way we do, it's the least you can do.
